Saints stars end goal drought to move fifth

ON THE SPOT: James Ward-Prowse scores the opening goal with a penalty

SAINTS 2 HULL 0

JAMES Ward-Prowse and Graziano Pelle both broke their scoring droughts as Saints climbed up to fifth with a 2-0 win over Hull at St Mary's.

Ward-Prowse's second half opener from the penalty spot was his first goal for more than four years, and a first ever in the Premier League.

Pelle added Saints' second with nine minutes remaining to end a run of 14 top flight matches without a goal.

With Tottenham suffering a shock home defeat to Aston Villa, three points for Saints saw Ronald Koeman's side leapfrog Spurs into fifth and take another decisive step towards securing European football for next season.

SAINTS 2 HULL 0: GOALS FOR WARD-PROWSE

SAINTS HIT TO MAINTAIN

Saints were presented with an opportunity virtually straight from the kick-off as a woefully directed Hull back-pass from the halfway line set Shane Long in on goal.

He opted to take the ball round the outside of keeper Steve Harper but a heavy touch meant he overran it and it went harmlessly behind.

Hull didn't take long to create an opening either as Stephen Quinn cut inside Toby Alderweireld and fed the ball to Sone Aluko but he dragged his shot from 12 yards out across goal and wide of the target.

Aluko did get a shot on target on six minutes, this time bursting down the right and firing low across goal from a tight angle, but Kelvin Davis got down sharply to his right to save.

Hull were causing Saints a few problems early on with Dame N'Doye bringing down a ball that beat Maya Yoshida in the air but slicing well wide.

Saints weathered the storm and started to get a foothold in the game, keeping the ball better and pressing Hull back.

They got a half chance on 16 minutes when a ball dropped to Morgan Schneiderlin just inside the area but he sliced wide a tricky volley.

It took until 20 minutes before Saints created a great chance, which fell to Graziano Pelle.

Long showed great strength to win a raking cross field pass and cut in from the left. He pulled the trigger inside the area but saw his shot blocked by a brave sliding challenge and it broke to Pelle, whose first time shot from eight yards out was straight at Harper who did well to save with his legs.

Hull always posed a threat though, especially while Saints just struggling for a bit of sharpness, and Aluko's speculative effort from 25 yards out whistled only narrowly wide of the post.

Saints were happy to escape again on 32 minutes when a left wing cross made its way to Quinn but he volleyed into the ground and it was easy for Kelvin Davis.

Pelle became the first man in the book after his arm clubbed into the face of Alex Bruce after challenging for a ball in the air.

Saints were dealt a blow when Victor Wanyama appeared to stop the break of Aluko with a fair challenge only for referee Kevin Friend to adjudge that he pulled the Hull man back. It resulted in a yellow card, which was Wanyama's tenth of the season, meaning he now has to serve a two game ban.

Alderweireld threatened in first half stoppage time with a low drive that Harper saved and at the break it was still goalless.

Koeman made a half time change to protect his side against a possible sending off for Wanyama by replacing him with James Ward-Prowse.

Saints didn't start the second half with an awful lot more urgency, still somewhat sluggish and struggling to really make an impact.

They were grateful to Kelvin Davis for an excellent save on 54 minutes to keep the scores level.

The Saints stopper made a superb dive to his left to man-

Ronald Koeman made three changes to the team that were beaten by Everton for the visit of Hull to St Mary's.

There was a change in defence with Nathaniel Clyne dropped to the bench, with Koeman saying the player was tired. Toby Alderweireld moved to right back with Maya Yoshida coming into the side in the centre of defence. The other two changes came in the attacking positions.

Steven Davis and Sadio Mane were drafted into the side with James Ward-Prowse and Elerjo Elia amongst the subs.

Filip Djuricic was missing with a minor ankle injury.

age to keep out a fierce low drive from just outside the area by Jake Livermore.

It proved a turning point as a ball down the outside moments later led to the Saints opener.

Saints finally got something to grab hold of as Long burst behind and into the area down the right side and was chopped down by Bruce.

There was no doubt it was a penalty and referee Friend duly pointed to the spot.

Ward-Prowse stepped up to take it on 56 minutes and showed great technique and composure to side foot home with Harper guessing correctly and diving to his left but well beaten by the direction and pace of the strike as the midfielder scored his first ever Premier League goal.

Hull threatened to equalise soon afterwards as James Chrster headed goalwards from a corner but Ryan Bertrand hacked the ball off the line.

Saints made a second change on 61 minutes with Dusan Tadic replacing Mane. Hull responded with Mohamed Diame coming on for Chester.

Both sides made a further switch on 74 minutes.

Hull brought on Yannick Sagbo for Tom Huddlestone while for Saints it was their final one with Eljero Elia replacing Long.

There was much to celebrate with nine minutes remaining as Saints sealed the win – and Pelle broke his scoring duck.

It was an incisive and well worked Saints move that led to the goal.

Tadic cut inside from the right and feed a perfect ball down the outside to Schneiderlin in the area. He intelligently pulled it back to Pelle who had the simple task of rolling home a finish from eight yards out with Harper all but beaten.

Hull made a final change with Abel Hernandez coming on for Aluko.

Saints should have added another goal on 89 minutes as Alderweireld got to the right by-line and cut the ball back perfectly to Steven Davis in the centre of the goal, just eight yards out.

However, he was left with his head in his hands as he side-footed his finish over the bar.

It mattered not though for Saints as by that stage they had taken the wind out of Hull's sails and done enough to equal their record Premier League points haul for a season and move still closer to European football.

'I JUST DIDN'T RECOGNISE SAINTS IN FIRST HALF'

RONALD Koeman was relieved to see Saints get a win against Hull after admitting he didn't recognise his side in the first 45 minutes.

Adam Leitch

CHIEF SPORTS REPORTER

The Saints boss was stunned to see a lacklustre and nervy start to the game from his team, before they turned it around in the second period to secure the win thanks to a James Ward-Prowse penalty and another from Graziano Pelle.

It was a significant three points too on a weekend that saw Tottenham slip to a surprise defeat at home to Aston Villa.

Koeman admitted he was relieved that his side managed to get the victory.

He said: "In the end yes but it took us a long time that I recognise my team on the pitch. It wasn't the first 45 minutes.

"Hull played well, Hull was the better team, of course we had the better chances and we have to score after one minute and it makes it much more easier.

"Graziano get a good chance, good save of the goalkeeper, but looking nervous. I was disappointed about that and unhappy at half time. If you fight for relegation you have to be nervous but if you fight for something special in the season, why are you nervous?

"We know our qualities and it wasn't good enough in the first half."

Koeman admitted his delight at Pelle ending a run of 14 games without a Premier League goal.

"Of course," he smiled. "It's normal, the last goal was in December. It's a long time ago.

"It wasn't a discussion, it wasn't a question how he is playing because he showed his qualities to be a strong target man but if you are a striker you like to score and you need to score and it will help him a lot the second goal."

It was also a significant strike from the penalty spot from Ward-Prowse, who scored his first for Saints in four years and a first ever in the top flight – but only after Koeman ordered Sadio Mane away from the spot kick.

"I was surprised because everybody knows if Prowsey is on the pitch and normally Dusan and they are the first and the second choice to take the penalty," insisted Koeman.

"I had to shout to Jose to change that because it looks that Sadio take the penalty and Prowsey accept that and I don't understand that because he knows the first choice. It was a difficult situation, a difficult situation, but I had to do it."

Cherries boss Howe out to win every game

BOURNEMOUTH manager Eddie Howe stressed that his side had "won nothing yet" after late goals from Yann Kermorgant and Callum Wilson put them four points clear at the top of the Championship with a 2-0 success at Brighton.

The Cherries' sixth win in their last nine games has given them an advantage over nearest rivals Norwich and Watford with four games remaining, but Howe believes promotion places are still very much up for grabs.

He said: "We've four games left now and we've got to look at taking 12 points; we have to try and win every game.

"It wouldn't surprise me if one of the sides at the top wins all their last games. Nothing has been won yet.

"I won't accept that we are favourites, I still think it is anyone's.

"This league has a habit of throwing up surprises and we must stay strong to the end."

Kermorgant now boasts 16 goals this season and Wilson 21, and Howe said he was "really proud" of setting a new club goalscoring record.

The Cherries now total 106 goals in all competitions and Howe said: "It will be the goalscorers that will get the headlines, but this win was a team achievement.

"I'm really proud of our goalscoring record this season and it is a team thing. The lads deserve a lot of credit."

Kermorgant put the Cherries ahead with a tremendous curling free-kick after 70 minutes, and Howe enthused: "A moment of magic won us the game."

Brighton remain nine points clear of the drop-zone following Wigan's 2-2 draw with Fulham and boss Chris Hughton was quick to emphasise his men still have work to do with four games left.

Reflecting on three defeats in the last week, the former Newcastle, Birmingham and Norwich manager said: "We need more points. The challenge is to get them in our last four games.

"We don't want to rely on the teams below us; we are going to need to score more goals."

Brighton have now gone seven hours 50 minutes without a goal from one of their own players, and Hughton admitted: "I'm surprised that we are not scoring as we have been creating chances.

"There are some games when we have not been creative enough, and that is probably the biggest area to address."

Asked if he felt Bournemouth had the credentials to achieve promotion, Hughton said he felt Howe's team had as good a chance as anyone to realise their ambition. He said: "They are there on merit. Bournemouth are one of a group of teams who can do it; they've got enough quality and they produced a result against us, which is what the better teams do."

Spitfires close on play-off positions

EASTLEIGH will travel to Halifax on Tuesday knowing a positive result will take them into the Vanarama Conference play-off zone.

This afternoon's 3-1 home win over Alfreton Town leaves them a point outside fifth spot with a game in hand.

Kick-off at the Silverlake was delayed by half-an-hour after the visitors' team coach broke down on the M40.

With Eastleigh skipper Dean Beckwith unwell and Michael Green out with a hamstring problem, Paul Reid again wore the captain's armband as Richard Hill stuck with the same line-up that won at Welling on Monday.

The game had an end-of-season feel to it early on with Eastleigh's James Constable registering the first shot of note in the seventh minute after Jack Midson had headed the ball into his half.

That chance apart, the Spitfires' early threat was reduced to free-kicks and corners which were well dealt with by the mass ranks of Red defenders.

Constable felt hard done by when he earned no more than a corner after he and goalkeeper Tom Flynn fell over each other tussling for an awkward ball just inside the Alfreton area. And then the Spitfires no. 9 was again set-up by Midson, this time with a cross from the right but he flicked it wide of the near post.

Constable again went to ground just outside the visitors' box on 19 minutes when challenged from behind by Lathaniel Rowe-Turner. But, despite an outcry from the home bench, nothing was given.

It looked like turning into a frustrating game of football for Eastleigh until a stoke of luck went their way with 20 minutes gone.

There were only Red players in the box when Midson delivered from the left, but the ball took a slight deflection off one of them and went behind for a corner on the right.

Jai Reason's initial delivery came straight back to him, but he guided the second straight into the heart of the six-yard box where Joe PARTINGTON opened the scoring from close range.

But just when Eastleigh looked ready to take a grip on proceedings, they were rocked back on their heels by a 25th minute equaliser.

Home keeper Ross Flitney was not convinced the ball had crossed the line when Karl HAWLEY got on the end of Joe Leesley's corner, but the goal stood.

As a curious afternoon continued, Alfreton handed the lead back to Eastleigh on 32 minutes when Simon Lenighan needlessly wrestled Reason over in the area.

Keeper Flynn guessed correctly by diving to his right, but could not keep out Ben STREVENS' spot-kick which he fired accurately into the bottom corner.

A match that was already running late then took another bizarre twist when the game was held-up for another six minutes because part of the sprinkler system was sticking up just outside the centre-circle and was deemed dangerous by referee Nicholas Kinseley.

The offending articles was dealt with an eventually the groundsman arrived with a bucket and spade to fill in the hole. Not surprisingly the game lost all its shape and, with the clock ticking before 4.20pm, seven minutes of first-half stoppage time were announced.

There was still time, though, for Eastleigh to create a decent late chance when Partington's goal-bound header was cleared and Strevens blasted the follow-up wide.

Both teams took time to get going after the break before a moment of magic from Constable almost added to Eastleigh's lead.

He took the ball down on the edge of the box, shifted to the right of Rowe-Turner and, in one sweet movement whistled a shot wide of Flynn's right-hand post.

Constable continued to keep Alfreton's rear guard well occupied and then Howard produced an inspired piece of improvisation, spotting Flynn off his line before letting fly from 45 yards and missing the target by just of couple of feet.

A rare Alfreton raid saw Flitney deal well with Dan Bradley's shot from the byline before, at the other end, Howard fired over from Constable's effort.

An injury stoppage for Reid delayed matter further and then Turley required treatment to his face after being caught by Wood, who was shown a second yellow on 69 minutes reducing the visitors to ten men.

Midson rifled a 25-yarder over and drifted another effort wide as Eastleigh continued to create chances.

By now Deon Burton had gone on in place of Howard, but another door closed on the Spitfires when Midson dinked the ball into Constable's path and, with Flynn having raced out of his box, the free-kick went in the visitors' favour as the pair collided.

When Eastleigh's third goal finally arrived it was with the help of a deflection as midfielder Craig STANLEY drove in a shot from the right of the area.

The ball looped past the wrong footed Flynn and had already crossed the line before Constable arrived to make sure.

There was still time for a terrific by-line charge by Partington, which deserved to end with a goal, and a blocked shot by Constable before the final whistle blew at 5.30pm.

MODEST LEGEND BILL WILL BE LONG REMEMBERED

LAST Saturday saw the news that Saints legend Bill Ellerington had sadly passed away aged 91.

BEAUTIFUL SOUTH

BY DAREN WHEELER

I never saw Bill play, I was too young to see him play, but those I knew that did told me he was as good a defender as Southampton were likely to see. Ted Bates told me himself that Bill was in his own "dream team" which was as great a compliment as any Saints footballer could earn.

I met Bill at a time when I was disenchanted with football somewhat; money was becoming more and more of a factor in the game and finding something in the game that could raise your spirits and make you believe was becoming rarer and rarer.

Bill lived in Highfield, just over the road from my old local and as such the interview was a breeze to arrange and attend. There was something about Bill, he had that rare air to him that just exuded calmness and authority but it came with a sense of immense likeability.

Of all the interviews I did in my years running Beautiful South, Bill Ellerington was by far the best. You sensed that here was a man of immense modesty. He showed that in the way he deflected any mention of his discovering Mick Channon. It was obvious by the way he spoke and the stories he told me that he was pivotal in Channon signing for the Saints but Bill was remarkably modest about it all.

What made the interview so intriguing was the fact that Ellerington had signed for Saints after coming back from the war. Again, with immense modesty he steered the conversation away from his time serving his country as if it was of no real consequence, hardly worth mentioning. For today's professionals, the thought of serving your country in a time of war is impossible to conceive but for Bill and thousands of footballers of his era, it happened and it had an impact on their life that resonated for years to follow.

Bill signed as a professional with Southampton in September 1945 and made his debut in an FA Cup game at Newport County on 10 January 1946 and went on to make 237 first-team appearances and was twice capped for England. After retiring in 1956, he became player-coach of the 'A' side, a scout and continued to work with Ted Bates for years to come. He and Bates scouted Manchester United prior to the 1976 cup final, Mick Channon recounted in his autobiography that the two "watched United so much we knew what they had for breakfast." And that it was "The greatest piece of tactical scouting I have ever known."

People like Bill are, sadly, few and far between and he will be sorely missed by those who knew him or appreciated the immense impact he had on his hometown club. His passing makes the theme of this week's column all the more poignant. Loyalty.

In a forthcoming summer where Saints will again fall under the spotlight, you fear for the club and whether it can survive another "Summer of inconvenience."

I use the word inconvenience as that what's the club is at the moment, an inconvenience for the establishment. In a world where money doesn't just talk, it runs about waving its hands, Saints are an inconvenience simply because they don't conform to the modern-day business plan.

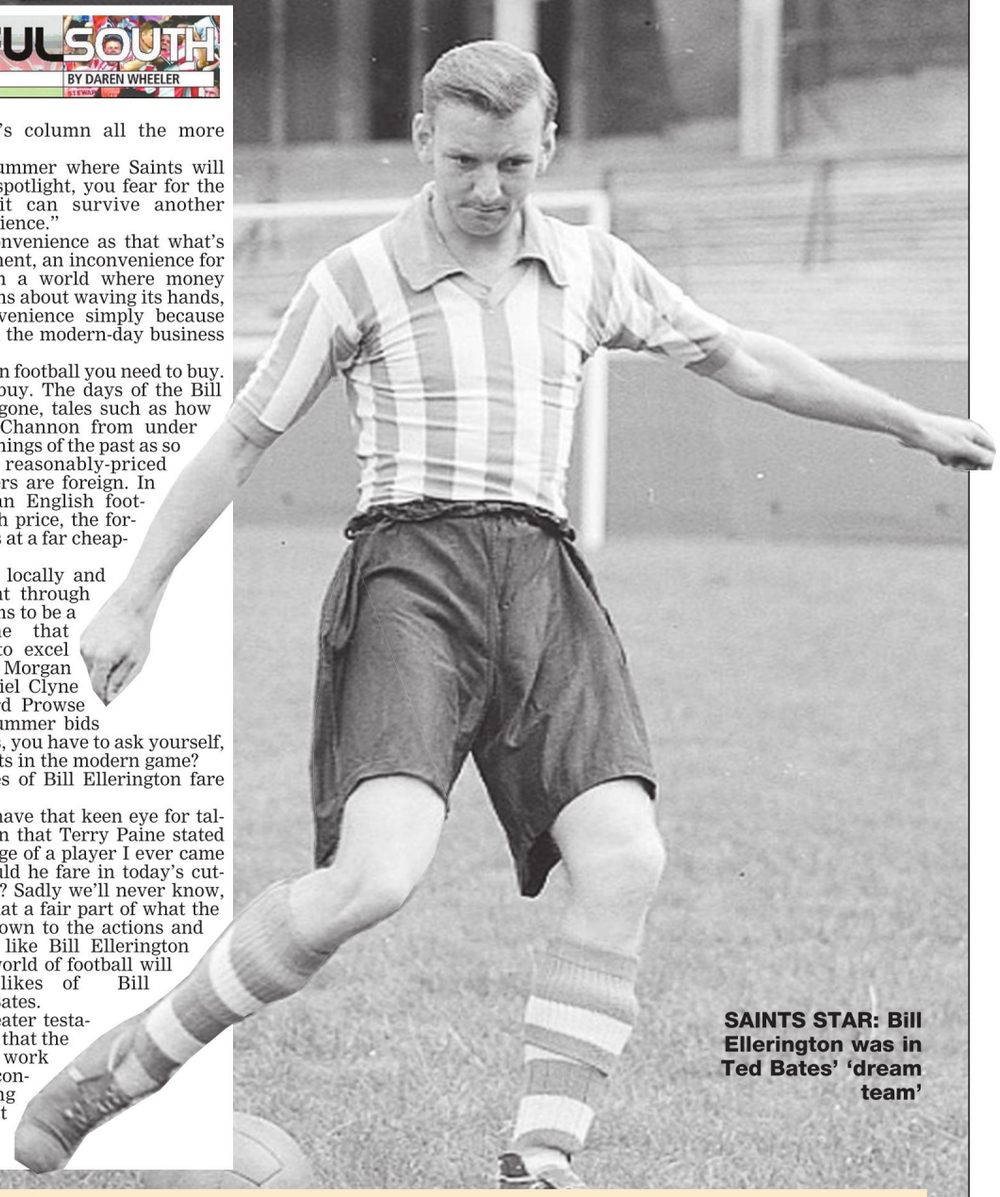
To succeed in modern football you need to buy. Buy, buy, buy, buy, buy. The days of the Bill Ellerington are long gone, tales such as how Saints signed Mick Channon from under Swindon's noses are things of the past as so many of the reasonably-priced Premiership footballers are foreign. In the modern game, an English footballer comes at a high price, the foreign equivalent comes at a far cheaper price tag.

The art of scouting locally and producing local talent through your own system seems to be a dying art but one that Southampton seem to excel in. With rumours that Morgan Schneiderlin, Nathaniel Clyne and now James Ward Prowse now the subject of summer bids from teh big five clubs, you have to ask yourself, why bother with scouts in the modern game?

How would the likes of Bill Ellerington fare today?

No doubt he'd still have that keen eye for talent, an ability so keen that Terry Paine stated "Bill was the best judge of a player I ever came across," but how would he fare in today's cut-throat sporting world? Sadly we'll never know, all we will know is that a fair part of what the club has become is down to the actions and dedication of people like Bill Ellerington and Ted Bates. The world of football will always need the likes of Bill Ellerington and Ted Bates.

There can be no greater testament to your life than that the focus of your life's work will remember your contribution to it, long after you've gone. Rest in peace Bill..



SAINTS STAR: Bill Ellerington was in Ted Bates' 'dream team'

A true legend – Terry Paine pays tribute to Bill Ellerington

IT WAS extremely sad to hear that Bill Ellerington had passed away,

I had known Bill since I was nine years old.

I used to see him in Winchester on the Highcliffe estate when he came to visit his then fiancée Ros Gregory.

I lived round the corner in Portal road but was always at the Gregory's because they ran the local football team Highcliffe Corinthians and it was the only place I could borrow a football to take to the local playing fields,

Ever since those days our paths met on a regular basis, little did I know that a few years later I would be wearing a Saints shirt and Bill was to play a big part in my football education.

Not only was he an outstanding player and coach but also a very shrewd judge of talent.

His association with the club lasted thirty-odd years and he became Ted Bates right hand man in helping the Saints establish themselves in those early days.

We both parted company with the club, I moved on to be player coach at Hereford United and often called on Bill when I wanted information on a particular player.

His vast knowledge often gave John Sillett and myself the edge in the transfer market.

Living in South Africa I had fewer chances of meeting up with him, but never missed an opportunity when I was visiting Southampton to drop in to see him.

Sadly I will miss those get-togethers.

Bill Ellerington was an absolute gentleman who served Southampton football club with great distinction and could rightly be called a true legend of the game.

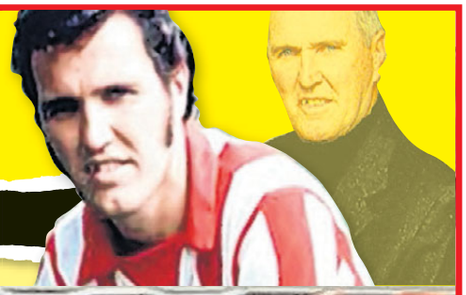
The Saints legend's EXCLUSIVE column on all things football



A STRIKING IMPACT

IT'S usually said that attack is the best form of defence and strikers are always going to agree with that.

This season has seen some really fine attacking displays and, as the contest for Championship top scorer really hots up, who is likely to come out on top?

The real front runner for the golden boot is Ipswich Town's Daryl Murphy who, with five games remaining, has 23 goals, three ahead of Watford's Troy Deeney.

What makes Murphy really stand out is his constancy throughout the season. In fact his longest league 'goal drought' is just four games, and he has scored two goals on five separate occasions.

With only three assists in the League this season, he certainly appears to be more of the finisher than all round striker, but with a scoring record like his no one will complain.

The lack of assists is probably in part due to his inability to really hold the ball up combined with the fact he isn't the strongest passer of the ball. But, at 189cm he has great aerial ability.

This has really been the breakthrough season for Murphy, and it has been a chance for him to really shows what he can do in a good team; he is already ten ahead of last seasons tally.

At 32, Murphy's best chance of returning to the Premier League is definitely through promotion with Ipswich, something that is still not guaranteed.

TOP FLIGHT

One player in the top five who looks likely to be playing in the top flight next season is Norwich City's Cameron Jerome. Of course it wouldn't be Jerome's first taste of the Premier League,

Once touted as a rising star in the game, Jerome struggled to live up to the hype, and he has already matched his previous best when he scored 18 goals for Championship Cardiff City nearly ten years ago. After a somewhat unsuccessful loan spell at Crystal Palace last season (he managed just two goals in 28 appearances), he started this season at newly relegated Norwich. He got off to a good start, scoring five goals in his first six games, before slowing down a little.

Whilst a 20 goals a season striker is hard to come by, a 40 goal pairing is near impossible, and teams that possess such a lethal strike force will always be at the right end of the table. This season, Watford's Troy Deeney and Odion Ighalo are just one goal away from that target. Deeney is definitely a player really on the up. He managed 24 goals last season, in what was a poor year for Watford who finished mid-table. Looking at his form over the past few seasons, it is hardly surprising he is one of the top strikers in the division and, at 26, he really is coming into his prime.

One of the keys to a good partnership is both strikers really contributing, and Deeney has certainly been doing that, coming up with eight assists to go with his 20 goals.

Deeney's finishing is on a par with his passing ability and he really is looking like an all round striker.

His partner in crime, Odion Ighalo, is not quite as accomplished in the assist department, but has still racked up an impressive 19 goals, one behind his team mate.

Ighalo came to Watford on loan at the start of the season, and he is another of those confusing players that seem to move between clubs owned by Gino Pizzo with great ease. It took Ighalo a while to adjust to Championship football, and he managed just three goals in his first 16 league games.

To put this in perspective, he has managed 16 in his last 16 appearances, including four goals in the thrashing of Blackpool.

Rounding out the top five are three players all on 17 goals; Chris Martin (Derby County), Jordan Rhodes (Blackburn Rovers) and Callum Wilson (AFC Bournemouth). Trailing Deeney at the top by six goals so far, it is unlikely that any of these three will top the table, but they do all still have a great chance of hitting 20.

For Wilson, this is particularly impressive after making the jump from League One Coventry City in the close season. Whatever happens with Bournemouth this year, few seem to doubt he will be appearing in the Premier League in the next few seasons.

Both Jordan Rhodes and Chris Martin have continued their fine form from last season. Rhodes in particular has been so consistent over the past few seasons, he may feel summer is the time to move on, especially as there are a large number of clubs interested.

As for Martin, he is a strong attacking player more than capable of holding up the ball. Like Rhodes it is likely that he will have some thinking to do at the end of the season, especially if Derby fail to get promoted again.

A special mention should also go to Benik Afobe, who signed to Wolverhampton Wanderers from Arsenal.

He has struggled to really produce goals on his numerous loan spells, but something has changed this season. So far he has managed ten goals in 22 appearances for Milton Keynes Dons, with a further ten in 16 for Wolves. He is a strong player, good at holding up the ball and getting round defenders and finally improving his finishing means next year could be a big season for him.

Of course, any good player will be far more concerned about team performances and promotion than claiming the golden boot.

But, with most of the top strikers featuring for teams in the promotion hunt, they will be hoping to continue adding to their tally in the remaining games.

SOUTHERN Daily Echo

A remarkable career

LAST Saturday, Saints fans woke to the sad news that club legend Bill Ellerington had passed away at the age of 91.

Ellerington remains one of the club's greatest-ever full backs, scoring 10 goals during his 238-game stint with the club.

He made his debut for his boyhood club at the age of 23 in 1946, against a Newport County side in the FA Cup, writes KIERAN ORAM

The right-back once made the mistake of sporting an open-neck jersey while playing golf ahead of the club's fourth round FA club tie against Newcastle. He subsequently contracted pleurisy, keeping him sidelined for the following two years.

Once recovered, Ellerington quickly forced his way back into the Saints starting 11, earning himself an England cap in May 1949's continental tour.

Bill retired in 1956, leaving behind a lofty legacy as one of the club's finest kickers of the ball.

However, Ellerington's retirement didn't mark the end of his affiliation with the club, and he was duly appointed player-coach by Ted Bates.

Off the field, Ellerington's tasks included scouring the market for top players with the aim of bringing them to the club.

Bill had a keen eye for talent, and is widely credited for bringing young Mick Channon to the club.

During Lawrie McMenemy's FA cup winning reign at the club, the former right back was moved into a scouting role, tasked with providing tactical analysis on Saints' FA Cup final opponents Manchester United.

With the help of Ted Bates, Ellerington was hailed as providing one of the "greatest pieces of tactical scouting" by then player Mick Channon.

Despite the great FA Cup success of 1976, Bill was relieved of his duties during a Mcmenemy reshuffle in 1980.

This ended Ellerington's professional association with the game, leaving his scouting post at the age of 57.

Despite suffering a crippling stroke and heart attack in 2008, Ellerington remained a Southampton enthusiast to the day of his death, often hosting Saints historians and generously affording them access to his vast range of photos and memorabilia.

SAINTS LEGEND: Bill Ellerington

Bill Ellerington will surely go down as one of the club's greatest-ever servants, both on and off the field. His contribution to the club was invaluable and historic: a true Saint.

Some notable games:

Sept 4 1946 – Saints 4, Swansea 0
Sept 71946 – Saints 1, Bury 1

Bill made his league debut for Bill Dodgin's Saints in a comfortable Division Two victory over Swansea.

He then starred in a draw with Bury, showing his notable defensive capabilities.

He had started nervously, failing to make a clearance, which forced George Ephgrave to make a good save from Carter.

However, Ellerington soon got into his stride, denying Bury on several occasions. He tackled Moss as he went through on goal, before another perfectly-timed tackle saved Saints. He was then 'applauded for tackling Carter just at the right time'.

This excellent defending helped earn a point for Saints, who had opened the scoring through Jack Bradley on 16 minutes, before Kilshaw equalised on 68 minutes.

Bill's sterling defensive work, which saw him 'living up to all the good things that have been said about him', helped contribute to a 'well-ordered and formidable' Saints defence that season.

April 15, 1949 – Grimsby 0, Saints 1

Bill was renowned throughout his career as an excellent penalty taker.

But he showed the dangers of messing with a winning formula in a game against Grimsby.

He decided to change his technique after missing a crucial pen against West Ham at the Dell the previous week, changing his preferred side to shoot at from right to left.

After spending 'all the week' thinking about taking a penalty, inevitably he stepped up for another crucial one, in the 89th minute of the game with the score 0-0.

Unfortunately, as Ellerington shaped to kick, he made more contact with the ground than the ball.

Luckily, goalkeeper George Taylor dived the wrong way, and the ball 'trundled away' into the left-hand side of the goal.

Bill had to be carried off the pitch 'with red-hot needles' in his foot from the pain, but he had won the match for Saints.

September 29, 1951 – Birmingham City 1, Southampton 1

Ellerington twice saved the saints in a goalmouth scramble, first heading clear a close-range effort before eventually smothering the ball as it was driven back in.

Ellerington followed this up with a critical third clearance, heading a dangerous ball clear of goal following a Birmingham indirect free kick.

However, Saints were unable to withstand the growing Birmingham pressure, with a fortunate slip allowing Purdon to be put through on goal. One on one with the Saint's keeper, Purdon chose to pull the ball back for Briggs, with the striker finishing low from close range.

The goal made for a frantic final few minutes, with Birmingham pressing for the winner. Ellerington made one final clearance, once again rising highest to thump the ball clear, ensuring a vital first away point of the season.

A giant of the game

A tribute to Bill Ellerington by John Buckle, who played amateur football for Southampton A team under and alongside the Saints legend...

I was first taken to the Dell by my father on the early 1950s. I was about eight years' old, and we were able to stand on the rail, behind the Archer's Road Goal.

I had never seen anything like it, the cheering crowds packed the terraces, it was magic.

During the early part of the game, Saints conceded a corner, and some 12 feet from where we stood, a powerful player with a large number 2 on his shirt took his position by the near post. On asking my father, he told me it was Bill Ellerington, and he plays for England.

Some years later, I was able to join the Saints as an amateur player, but like so many others did not have the skills to make the grade.

During those years Bill Ellerington and George Horsefall were in charge of training and development, and all the lads were referred to by Bill and George as 'Son'.

Bill's understanding of the game was brilliant and he would explain and encourage anyone who asked his advice or sought his views on any aspect of play.

He always wanted to join in the games, with socks around his ankles, shorts and an old track suit top; however he did not suffer fools gladly.

After I had finished playing I lost touch with Bill for some years, by which time he had left the Saints, whom he had served as a 'one club man', both as a player, on the training staff and Chief Scout.

Bill had always been loyal to the Saints, even when Arsenal came calling during his prime playing years.

On my moving back to Southampton, Bill and I resumed our friendship and we saw each other on a regular basis.

Our main topic of conversation was, of course, football, which could go on indefinitely.

Bill had two important aspects to his life, firstly his wife Ros, and their two children, Gail and William, and secondly football.

During this time I got to know Ros well, and Bill frequently would tell anyone present, that marrying Ros was the best days' work he had ever done, which always raised a knowing smile from her who clearly felt the same.

Gail has lived in France for some years and William in London, both running their own businesses.

Over the last few years, Bill had not enjoyed good health, but was always supported so well by his wife Ros, to whom he was married for over 64 years.

At the beginning of each season in the 50s & 60s the Football Echo used to list the Players, their heights and weights.

Bill Ellerington stood 6ft 1in tall and weighed 12 stone. Bill was a 'Big Man' in the world of Football and also in life, generous of spirit and always with the right words to get the best from people, he will be sadly missed.

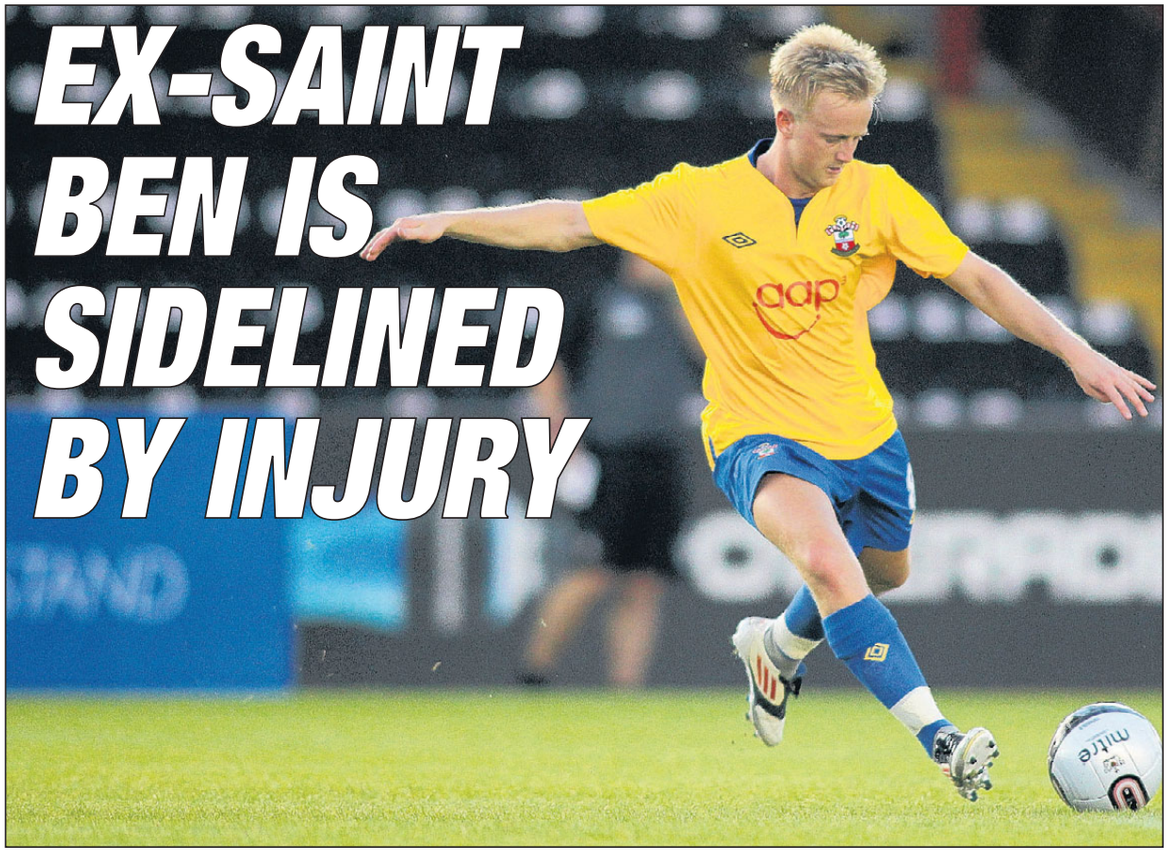
EX-SAINT BEN IS SIDELINED BY INJURY



RULED OUT FOR REST OF SEASON: Ben Reeves playing for a Saints XI in 2012

FORMER Saints midfield prospect Ben Reeves will have to watch MK Dons' SkyBet League 1 promotion challenge from the side-lines after being ruled out for the rest of the season with a calf injury.

The Verwood-raised 23-year-old played for Northern Ireland against Scotland last Wednesday, and picked up the injury while away with Michael O'Neill's squad, writes MIKE VIMPANY

Reeves, who made 13 appearances for Saints while Nigel Adkins was manager, found a rich vein of form for Dons of late, scoring four goals in nine games from midfield.

MK Dons manager Karl Robinson said he was "gutted" to have lost Reeves, who joined the Saints Academy as a schoolboy in 2001.

"Ben's a big loss to us. He's really set the world alight recently and was the catalyst for our wins, scoring in the 3-1 victory at Oldham Athletic and shining when we beat Notts County 4-1," Robinson said.

Prior to the untimely injury he picked up midway through the second half of his International debut at Hampden Park, Reeves's 5'7" stature hadn't affected his role in the promotion chasing MK Dons side.

"We've played him a higher number 7 or 10 role coming in off the line, obviously because his physicality makes it difficult for him to play more centrally.

"We find places for talented players and Ben's got that in abundance.

"We're lucky to have him," the manager added.

In his early days at Saints, Reeves was busy helping the Poole & East Dorset team reach the final of the English Schools' FA Under-15 Trophy in 2007.

Ironically, he limped out of the second leg of the final at Dean Court when Poole lost to Worksop & Retford.

He made his 13 Saints appearances in two seasons between 2011 and 2012, scoring in the 4-1 Capital 1 Cup win at Stevenage Town in August 2012.

He subsequently spend a five-match spell on loan to Dagenham & Redbridge, and the following season got valuable pitch time with Sound End United.

But Reeves's game has really taken off since he joined MK Dons, where he was a pivotal part of the squad that is pushing Preston North End hard for the second automatic promotion spot behind champions-in-waiting Bristol City.

Reeves has played over 60 games under Robinson's tutelage, scoring 18 times.

Sadly, he'll play no further part in Dons' promotion push which is shaping up nicely on the back of four straight League 1 victories.

TAKING OFF: Ben Reeves (left) in action for MK Dons

Sherwood sinks his old side...

CHRISTIAN Benteke scored his eighth goal in six games to hand Aston Villa manager Tim Sherwood a winning return to Tottenham.

Sherwood (right), who was relieved of his duties at White Hart Lane at the end of last season, has since taken the job at Villa with the task of keeping them in the Premier League and this victory will go some way to helping him achieve that goal, although the visitors did see Carlos Sanchez sent off late into stoppage time.

Coincidentally, Sherwood's last game in charge of Spurs was a 3-0 win over Villa, and he was on the winning side once more as Benteke headed home 10 minutes before half-time to seal a 1-0 victory.

Yannick Bolasie plundered an 11-minute hat-trick as Crystal Palace boss Alan Pardew masterminded a 4-1 victory at Sunderland.

The DR Congo international struck on 51, 54 and 62 minutes after Glenn Murray had opened the scoring to hand Palace their first ever top-flight win on Wearside.

Connor Wickham's (right) 89th-minute strike proved scant consolation for Sunderland, who remain mired in the relegation battle.

Jamie Vardy's stunning injury-time winner handed basement side Leicester a vital survival lifeline after a 3-2 victory at West Brom.

The striker ran from the halfway line before burying a drive into the corner to close the gap to safety to just three points.

Robert Huth's late header had made it 2-2 after Darren Fletcher and Craig Gardner scored for Albion while David Nugent levelled in the first half before the Foxes' late show.

Swansea equalled their best-ever Premier League points haul of 47 as they fought back to stop Everton's winning run in a feisty 1-1 draw at the Liberty Stadium.

Aaron Lennon (below) gave the visitors a 41st minute lead with his second goal in Everton colours, but Swansea equalised after 69 minutes when Seamus Coleman's handball was spotted by referee Michael Oliver and Jonjo Shelvey scored with a firm spot-kick.

Marko Arnautovic's dramatic stoppage-time equaliser earned Stoke a 1-1 draw at West Ham.

The Hammers looked to have done enough to battle to victory after taking an early lead through a superb free-kick by full-back Aaron Cresswell.

However, after seeing two efforts from Arnautovic ruled out for offside and a header by substitute Mame Diouf hit the post, the visitors snatched a point deep into stoppage time when the Austrian forward crashed the ball into the far corner.

Ban's bad for Sills

TIM Sills have voiced his frustration at having to serve a three-match ban at such a crucial period in Weymouth's Southern Premier promotion campaign.

The experienced ex-Basingstoke and Gosport marksman was unavailable on Easter Monday as the Terras fell 2-0 at Truro City.

With Weymouth's play-off hopes now hanging in the balance, Sills admitted: "It's never nice to miss games for any reason, especially when it's at such a crucial stage of the season and we are in desperate need of points.

"We need to make sure we are fully focussed for the last four games and see if we can scrape our way into the play-offs. Then it becomes a lottery and hopefully we can recapture some early-season form."

Williams wins praise from rival manager

BRETT Williams earned high praise from the manager after a virtuoso performance for Aldershot Town at Forest Green Rovers last Friday.

But it wasn't his own boss singing the praises of the former Eastleigh marksman, it was opposition manager Ady Pennock who had just seen his side's play-off hopes dented 3-1 by the Williams-inspired Shots.

Three goals in a stunning eight-minute second-half spell brought Aldershot back from a goal down at The New Lawn, virtually assuring them of Vanarama Conference survival.

And it was 27-year-old Williams, pictured, who got the comeback started, cashing in on miscommunication in the FGR defence to meet Jordan Roberts' cross with a hooked volley.

Pennock admitted afterwards: "I thought the lad (Brett) Williams was fantastic all game.

"That was the best centre-forward performance I've seen. I think he was the difference."

Aldershot kept up the good work on Easter Monday. A 2-0 home win over Torquay United – combined with Eastleigh's 2-1 victory at lowly Welling United - ensured they would live to fight another season in non-League's top flight.

Caretaker Shots boss Chris Barker beamed: "We've had two massive wins over the weekend to get six points and I'm very proud of the boys for turning the season around."

Forest Green atoned for Friday's sins by beating Chester 4-1 away on Monday to maintain their two-point lead over Eastleigh in the race for fifth spot – albeit that they have played a game more than Richard Hill's Spitfires.

Ex-Salisbury man Elliott Frear and former Saint Aarran Racine both scored for FGR along with brace man Jon Parkin.

CHAMPS TO FINISH WITH DELL AND ST MARY'S SHOWDOWNS

NEWLY-CROWNED Sydenhams One champions Team Solent have just two fixtures left to play this season – one at The Dell and one at St Mary's.

The Dell – home of Laverstock & Ford – will stage their final game of a triumphant league campaign on Saturday, April 25.

And, four days later, James Taylor's men will be targeting a second piece of silverware at St Mary's in the Southampton Senior Cup final against Hamble Club.

Team Solent wrapped up the league title with a game to spare on Tuesday, edging Ringwood Town 1-0 in a tetchy, untidy affair at Long Lane.

It wasn't the most commanding of performances from the Southampton Solent University side but, come the final whistle, nobody really cared.

A 22nd-minute goal from new boy Pedro De Carvalho was enough to take them out of reach of chasing Tadley Calleva – and get the celebrations started!

"It wasn't the greatest of games, but the result was all mattered," smiled manager Taylor, pictured left, afterwards.

"It's been a great season for us.

"We lost our first three games and to turn it round and win the league is an amazing achievement.

"It's been a special effort by these lads.

"We've played some amazing football at times and learned to grind out results in some of the tougher games.

"Tonight was pretty uneventful to be honest, but it's nice to have got the title."

With several students still away for Easter, Solent were seven players short, including in-form midfield goalscorer Jermal Frederick.

But recent signing De Carvalho came up with the goods when it mattered, choosing the perfect time to net his first ever goal for his new club.

Skipper Jesse Waller-Lassen powered his way to the byline and smacked the ball across for the former Romsey Town man to bury it at the far post.

"We signed Pedro about three weeks ago from Romsey," Taylor explained.

"One of our lads knew him and asked him to come to training, he signed and he's done really well.

"He not a Solent student, I think he goes to Bournemouth University."

The lessons Solent have learned this season should serve them well in the Sydenhams top flight next term.

"We're not losing many players and there will be a new (student) intake in September, so we should have a competitive side," said Taylor.

"We've got a few weeks off now before we play Laverstock and it would be nice if we could do the double at St Mary's."

What they tweeted:

East Cowes Vics: Congratulations to @TeamSolentSport on winning the @SydWessex division one title

BEST IN THE LEAGUE

Burnet hails Bentley's 'phenomenal' goals record

53-GOAL SEASON: Warren Bentley.

GLENN Burnett has seen some deadly Wessex League marksmen in his time.

But, in his book, there is no one on the Sydenhams circuit right now to rival the finishing prowess of Winchester City's Warren Bentley.

Having topped the Sydenhams Premier goal charts for Alresford Town last season, Bentley's relentless hunger for goals has showed no signing of waning since he swapped the black and white of the Mapgies for Winchester's red and black last summer, writes WENDY GEE.

He weighed in with another three on Monday as his old club were swept aside 5-1 at the Denplan City Ground, making it 53 goals scored in all competitions.

Bentley opened his account from the penalty spot after Charlie Smeeton had been brought down by Craig Bryant and then expertly doubled his tally shortly before half-time after Zach Glasspool had pulled the ball back from the byline.

Luke Dempsey headed in City's third from a Glasspool corner and, after Andy Turner had hit back for the Mapgies following a superb solo run, Bentley duly completed his treble with a goal straight out of the top drawer.

He beat a couple of defenders as he drifted into the area and unleashed a superb, curling strike with the outside of his right boot.

Job done, Bentley went off for a well-earned rest. But if Alresford thought that would be the end of their problems, they thought wrong.

Bentley's replacement Liam Robinson scored with his first touch after good work from Micky Hubbard, who impressed in midfield alongside Stuart Green.

Summing up what Bentley brings to Winchester, assistant boss Burnett said: "I haven't seen a better goal scorer than Warren, he does it every single week.

"His movement's fantastic and he has such a good relationship with Zach Glasspool. They're very clever footballers and, at this level, they're the best pair there is in and around the box. They complement each other so well and some of the goals have been breathtaking.

"I've lost count of the goals that Warren and Zach have either scored or played a big part in this season.

"Warren's got 53 himself and that's a phenomenal return from any striker."

The pity for City's ex-Alresford contingent is that, for a third season running, they are destined to finish as Sydenhams Premier bridesmaids.

After being part of the Mapgies side that finished runners-up to Blackfield & Langley in 2012/13 and Sholing last season, Bentley, Glasspool & Co. will almost certainly be second again this year, this time behind top-flight new boys Petersfield Town who needed a win today to clinch the crown.

Considering Winchester changed managers mid-season, they have done well to keep the title pot boiling into the last three games.

But, hand on heart, Burnett believes it would have been a closer fight had the current management team, led by ex-Saints reserves midfielder Paul Masters, had the benefit of a full season – plus pre-season – in charge.

"I've said to Paul (Masters) many times that if we'd had a pre-season and if the group of players we've got together now had been here throughout the whole season, I really do think we could have made a big impression on this league," said Burnett.

"Over the season Petersfield have been outstanding.

"We've been looking for them to slip up and, if they had, we'd have been ready to pounce, but they haven't and no one can take that away from them.

"What Petersfield have achieved is amazing – but we're also proud of what we've done at Winchester.

"We've got a great group of players here all pulling in the right direction and we've been banging out some remarkable results to keep us in the top-two.

"Not only that, anyone who's turned up to watch us has seen a proper game of football.

"We play football the right way, it's entertaining and a joy to watch, and when we've come up against higher standard teams like Gosport Borough, we've played well.

"We haven't had the privilege of a whole season plus pre-season which gives you a bit of an edge, but it's all very positive going forward. There's plenty to build on."

Hammers chairman to stand down at end of season

HAMWORTHY United chairman Mark Bartlett will stand down at the end of the current Sydenhams Premier Division campaign.

The 48-year-old believes the club should seek fresh blood to replace him.

Bartlett is set to relinquish the role after the final game of his first season in charge due to work commitments.

He will, however, retain his place on the seven-strong committee at the County Ground.

Bartlett insisted his decision had been made with "a very heavy heart" but said his new job would make it impossible to commit sufficient time to United's cause.

"A change in my day job means I will be travelling a lot more and I do not believe in doing the chairman's role half-heartedly," he said.

"It has been a fairly stressful year with two managers departing, but I have still loved every minute of it and am incredibly disappointed not to be finishing the job I started.

"The ship is steady and nobody is panicking.

"Everybody dreams of a sugar daddy, but there are not that many around and they probably would want to look at a club further up the leagues.

"My advice would be to advertise the role, but where any new person would come from I'm not sure."

The tenth-placed Hammers made it seven points from their last three league games on Monday by beating Verwood Town 4-0.

Dan Smith, Jack Satterley, Kane Daysh and sub Oliver Clayton were on target.

Kicked out of cup final

BINSTEAD COB FC have been kicked out of the Hampshire Junior A Cup final.

The side were due to take on Ryde Saints in a rare all-Isle of Wight final at St George's Park, Newport, on April 18.

However, in a report submitted to Hampshire FA, it was revealed Binstead's player, Jack Morris, sat on the bench for a Somerset-based team in FA Cup and FA Vase games last season.

This made him ineligible for Hampshire Cup competitions this year.

A Binstead COB spokesperson said: "Binstead, as a club, never knew this information, with Jack playing the majority of matches this season for us.

"The club also spent £800 travelling in the cup this season, so it has been costly on all scales.

"Jack has played for us for three years and is an honest and dedicated player. Jack never realised the extent of his playing level outside of Hampshire, and the impact it could have."

League name change

THE Football Conference is to be renamed The Vanarama National League as from June 6.

The league is being rebranded to underline the competition's status at the pinnacle of the semi-professional game.

Brian Barwick, pictured below, the incoming VNL chairman, said: "I am delighted to be joining at this vibrant time with this exciting new branding.

"I look forward to steering this great competition to new levels of awareness and visibility."

BT Sport, meanwhile, have agreed a new three-year television deal. Along with live match coverage, there will be a regular weekly highlights show screened on Sunday evenings.

Sydenhams starlet signs for Reading

SYDENHAMS League starlet Andy Rinomhota has been officially unveiled as a Reading player.

The 17-year-old midfielder was talent-ed-spotted by the Royals following some impressive performances for Graham Rix's AFC Portchester in the Wessex Premier Division.

The youngster successfully trained with Reading for a number of weeks and played for their Academy.

He impressed sufficiently to land himself a two-year contract for the SkyBet Championship club with the option of a further 12 months.

Acknowledging Portchester's help in getting the deal completed, Reading's director of football Nick Hammond said: "I would like to thank Portchester chairman Paul Kelly and manager Graham Rix for all their help and the manner in which they have handled negotiations.

"Andy is a dynamic young midfielder, a good character from a good family and this is one of those deals we always like here at Reading.

"The boy is desperate to do well and we're delighted to have him here."

With the exception of two seasons, Rinomhota had been at Wicor Rec since he was seven years old and had gone from playing under the management of club stalwart Simon Woods at youth team level to playing alongside him in the first team.

More recently he had the privilege of learning his trade under Portchester boss Rix, the former England and Arsenal star, who he thanked for making his dream move possible.

Rix said: "Andy has totally deserved this opportunity. He is everything that AFC Portchester are about, giving lads the opportunity to play football, improve and move to a higher level.

"I know he is joining a good club with good people at Reading and I'm certain he will do everything possible to make his dreams come true.

"Everyone at AFC Portchester wishes Andy the best of luck."

Gos still in the hunt

GOSPORT Borough are still in the Conference South promotion hunt, albeit that they have a fight on their hands for fifth spot.

Ex-Saint Tom Dunford kept them on track with a 76th-minute equaliser in last Saturday's 1-1 home draw with Weston-super-Mare.

But Borough were pushed down into sixth spot on Monday following Whitehawk's 2-0 defeat of Hayes & Yeading.

Manager Alex Pike was disappointed to let two points slip against Weston, but insisted: "I'm not going to let this season go flat. We will fight for every win possible."

Borough were due to host St Albans today before they visit Bishops Stortford next Saturday (April 18).

Their final game of the regular league season brings title-chasing Bromley to Privett Park on April 25.

WALLS HAVE EARS! HILL S AND DISRESPECTFUL" W

Wings were the 'bullies', not us, claims furious Eastleigh boss

ON TARGET: Eastleigh's Jai Reason, centre, netted in the victory over Welling.

RICHARD Hill has rubbished Welling United claims that Eastleigh "bullied" their way to three points at Park View Road on Easter Monday.

The match report on the Wings' official website described the Spitfires as "bruising and at times bullying" in their pursuit of a 2-1 win that kept them on the brink of the Vanarama Conference play-offs.

But having overheard some of Welling's pre-match team talk, Hill, pictured below, has turned the tables on the Greater London outfit, claiming it was them – not Eastleigh – who went out with the specific game plan of getting stuck into the opposition.

"The bully became the bullied!" he said.

"The walls at their ground are like cardboard and I could hear what was being said in their dressing room after I'd sent our lads out to warm up at ten past two.

"I could hear them being told to have a right go and really get into us because, if they did, we would lose our discipline.

"He told them we were prima donnas who are only concerned about our own egos and don't want to work hard.

"They were told to get stuck into us early so we'd lose our discipline and that we would lose it even more if the manager (Hill) started getting on at us.

"I wrote all this down on the board in the dressing room and then I've read the report of the match from their end and all they're doing is moaning about how we've bullied them!

"Well, no, that's what they tried to do to us. We didn't bully them, they set out to try and intimidate us. Like I say, the bully became the bullied!"

Professing himself "disgusted" by Welling's attitude towards his side, Hill said: "It's rude and disrespectful to players like James Constable, Brian Howard and so on.

"It's also disrespectful to Richard Hill to imply that I'm the sort of manager who will shout at my players and make them worse.

"I hope Loui Fazakerley (Welling manager) has a good career ahead of him but, at the moment, he can only wish to be on the coaching side for as long as I've been.

"I found Welling's approach quite insulting to my players."

NON-LEAGUE REPORTER

Whatever the Wings' game plan, it didn't produce the desired result as goals by Jai Reason and Jamie Turley ensured Eastleigh brought the points back to Hampshire.

"My lads were absolutely brilliant," said Hill.

"Welling are fighting for their lives and it's not a nice place to go. The pitch is rubbish and even worse at this time of year, all bobbly with hardly any grass.

"Had we not worked hard and kept our discipline, we would have got beat, but we didn't.

"Welling scored from a corner after one of the worst offside decisions I've never seen given. It was embarrassing how far offside it was.

"That was another thing we had to contend with, but in the second half there was only ever one team in it."

"The walls at their ground are like cardboard and I could hear what was being said in their dressing room. "I could hear them being told to have a right go and really get into us because, if they did, we would lose our discipline. "He told them we were prima donnas who are only concerned about our own egos and don't want to work hard."

It's fair to say that Cornick didn't know too much about the equaliser, with defender Darren Purse's header from Scott Donnelly's corner going in off his back.

But on 66 minutes the young Cherries prospect showed what his game is all about. Picking the ball up in his own half, he outpaced two defenders before calmly beating the 'keeper.

Cornick – who turned 20 this week – turned on the class once more against Bath after Scott Donnelly had put Hawks ahead with a long-range drive.

A constant threat with his pace down the left, he made sure of the points on 74 minutes, working his way across the area before picking out the bottom corner.

The fourth-placed Hawks had no match today, but manager Bradbury reckons a point from their last two games – Basingstoke Town (away, April 18) and Whitehawk (home, April 25) – will see them safely into the play-offs.

"Ideally we can go on and win the last two games and see where it takes us," he added.

"All the time it is possible we can win the title, we will keep going for it."

Bristow tells Basingstoke to take title fight to wire

BASINGSTOKE Town boss Jason Bristow is determined to make sure the Vanarama Conference South title race goes down to the wire.

Two wins over the Easter period saw third-placed Town move to within two points of joint leaders Boreham Wood and Bromley, making them one of four teams in with a realistic chance of winning the league.

Bromley are the odds-on favourites and, going into today's round of matches, were the only side to hold their destiny in their own hands.

Boreham Wood and Havant & Waterlooville are also in the hunt and Bristow, pictured, wants to make sure his side are ready to pounce if Bromley make a mistake.

"We need to make sure that we are not kicking ourselves if Bromley do slip up," he said. "The worst thing that could happen is if we lose and then find out that Bromley have dropped points as well.

"It could go down to the last game and, if it does, then we will have done our job. We want to be in with a chance going into that final game."

'FANTASTIC POSITION'

Bristow added: "It's great that we are approaching this stage of the season with so much still at stake and it's a credit to the squad of players who have put themselves in such a fantastic position."

Basingstoke certainly did things the hard way at Hayes & Yeading last Saturday, clinching a 1-0 victory with nine men.

Ex-Eastleigh midfielder Shaun McAuley and Liam Enver-Marum were sent off within ten second half minutes of each other, but Stoke still managed to dig out an 85th-minute winner.

McAuley got his 65th-minute marching orders for a flailing arm and Enver-Marum quickly followed for kicking out at 'keeper Grant Smith following a collision – albeit that no contact was made.

But, against the odds, the nine men earned a penalty when Flood went down under Smith's rash lunge and the former Eastleigh and Winchester City forward proved deadly from the spot, netting his 13th league goal of the season.

"Once we were reduced to nine men, I felt comfortable we would not concede as we train for instances like that," said Bristow.

"We have good experience and knowledge on the pitch to keep our structure and we could have scored a second goal when Chris Flood went on a mazy run and was unfortunate not to hit the net."

Basingstoke kept up the good work on Monday with a hard-earned 3-1 win over struggling north Hampshire neighbours Farnborough, courtesy of Simon Dunn, Enver-Marum (penalty) and Lloyd Macklin.

Town win not a shock

STUART Heath insists Dorchester Town's triumph over high-riding Poole Town on Easter Monday was not the shock people might think.

Although few would have tipped lower-half Dorch to beat their title-chasing neighbours, the Magpies' head coach wasn't one of them.

Admitting it did not come as too much of a surprise when Nick Crittenden popped up with a second-half winner at The Avenue, Heath said: "It didn't show us anything we didn't already know, which was that we can compete with the top sides.

"We have done that over the last few months at places like Truro, Corby and Hungerford, it was just a case of doing it at home against Poole and playing to our potential.

"I thought the overall performance was outstanding and we were brilliant defensively against a side which I still think will win the league."

Whether Poole will top the Southern Premier is now in the balance, however, following a third straight loss.

Prior to the Dorchester defeat, Tom Killick's side crashed 1-0 at Chippenham last Saturday with ex-Eastleigh marksman Ashan Holgate inflicting the damage.

And it got worse still for the Dolphins on Wednesday at Cirencester Town, where two Richard Gillespie goals were not enough to ward off a 3-2 defeat.

Going into today's home game against Hitchin, Poole had slipped five points behind leaders Corby Town with two games in hand.

Homegrown stars

TWO of the area's best sources of homegrown talent will go head-to-head in the Wyvern League's John Stimpson Memorial Shield final next month.

AFC Totton and Sholing reserves will do battle for silverware at Romsey Town's Bypass Ground on Monday, May 11.

Richie Hayter's Stags were the first to book their place in the final, beating Winchester City 4-2 on Tuesday.

It was a sparkling night for under-16 striker Matty Brewer, who led the way with a hat-trick, and a proud occasion for young skipper Jake Rawkins who had played 45 minutes of Southern League football at Fleet Town the previous day.

Sholing, already through to the final of the Wyvern Challenge Cup, booked their ticket to Romsey with a 5-2 win over Verwood Town on Wednesday.

The Boatmen slipped 2-0 down, but hit back through Karl Littleboy, Josh Oxlade, Elliot Richards (pen), Serge Fon and Coby Wilson.

Wilson was also on the scoresheet, along with Connor Bloomfield, for the Boatmen's 2-0 Challenge Cup success over AFC Portchester.

Sholing will face Petersfield Town in the final at the Denplan City Ground, home of Winchester City, on Wednesday, May 6.

The Boatmen will spare a thought that night for unfortunate teammate Macaully Smith, whose knee buckled badly after he had gone up for a header against Portchester, causing suspected kneecap and ligament damage.

CELEBRATION TIME: The victorious Hampshire team and staff with the trophy after winning the Division Two Championship last September.

WILL IT BE ANOTHER CHAMPAGNE SEASON FOR HAMPSHIRE?

Simon Walter

CRICKET REPORTER

THERE is much to look forward to as Hampshire prepare for the start of their first season back in division one of the LV County Championship.

After a four-year absence, Hampshire are back where they belong after winning the second division title in Cardiff on the final day of last season.

From May 1, they will be playing their home matches against the backdrop of the completed Ageas Bowl hotel, a stage that will also be the setting for England one-day internationals in the series against World Cup finalists New Zealand (June 14) and Australia (September 3).

On the domestic front, Hampshire will be bidding to add to their silverware haul by winning a sixth trophy in seven seasons.

They can set a new record by reaching T20 Blast Finals Day for the sixth successive season and in former West Indies Test star Fidel Edwards, they have an exciting overseas signing for the 50-over Royal London One-Day Cup, which starts in July.

It promises to be a particularly big season for home-grown James Vince, who will captain Hampshire in both limited-overs competitions. A good start to the season would also put him in serious contention for an England call-up.

BENKS GIVES HAMPSHIRE

Simon Walter
simon.walter@dailyecho.co.uk
CRICKET REPORTER

THERE is no one on the Hampshire staff who knows more about the LV County Championship's first division than Dale Benkenstein.

Hampshire's first-team coach, pictured below, captained Durham to the first of their three Championship titles in 2008 so is relishing his return to the top-flight in the second year of what is still a relatively new role for the 40-year-old at The Ageas Bowl.

"I still think Test cricket in England is very strong and the first division has a lot to do with it," he said. "It's a good competition, there are no weak teams.

"They don't just have four good bowlers, they have six or seven as well as eight or nine good batters.

"But if you look at our line up we're not dissimilar and lot of our players have a lot to gain from doing well this season.

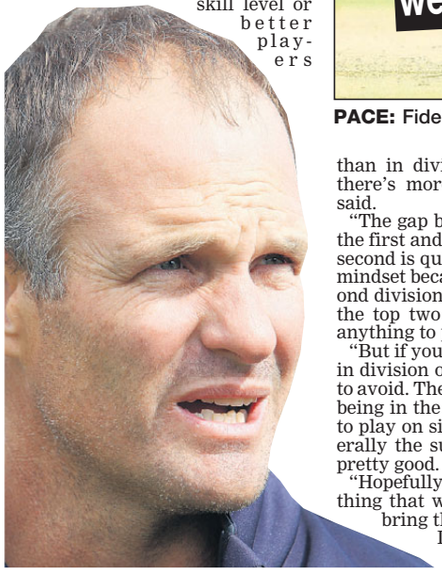
"Players like James Vince, Liam Dawson and Danny Briggs are on the stage that everyone is looking at when it comes to playing for England.

BULLISH

"And we actually have a chance of winning the Championship, which we haven't done for more than 40 years."

It bodes well that Benkenstein speaks so bullishly about Hampshire's chances, following the division two title success of last season.

"Naturally, the cricket's going to be harder but I don't think it's a case of a better skill level or better players than in division two, I just think there's more on every game," he said.



PACE: Fidel Edwards, right.

"The gap between the top sides in the first and the bottom sides in the second is quite big but a lot of it is a mindset because if you're in the second division and you can't finish in the top two you don't really have anything to play for.

"But if you're in the same position in division one you have relegation to avoid. The other good thing about being in the first division is getting to play on six Test grounds, so generally the surfaces are going to be pretty good.

"Hopefully the step up is something that will lift our players and bring the best out in them."

Despite losing Matt Coles and Kyle Abbott, Hampshire have managed to maintain the strength their attack since the title triumph in Cardiff on the final day of last season.

Jackson Bird and Fidel Edwards will share the overseas slot vacated by Abbott, while 39-year-old Andre Adams and 18-year-old Brad Wheal are short term and long-term additions.

"We've got pretty much everything we need but that's the easy part – now we have to go out and perform on the field," said Benkenstein. "We'll only really know where we are in the next couple of weeks.

"But we're not just focused on red-ball cricket, white-ball cricket is at the heart of this club."

Bird, Adams and Wheal both played in this week's friendly against Kent. Of the new seam quartet, Edwards is the most recent signing and will arrive in late July, to play in the Royal London One Day Cup and, all being well, the last five Championship matches.

His availability came to Hampshire's attention during last month's training trip to Barbados.

REAL PACE

"Jackson Bird isn't the slowest and Andre Adams is a really good pro who I know well, but when I look at our attack what's missing is some real pace – and at his best Fidel is one of the quickest in the world," said continued Benkenstein, who faced Edwards in his pomp back in 2004. He made 39 for the MCC against the Windies at Arundel. "It wasn't nice!" he said. "Consistently he hasn't been the world's best but when he's been good he's been up there with his pace, definitely.

"The West Indies seem to have abandoned him but he bowled really well against us last month. He's a little bit like Malinga, he comes from very low. He's just different which can be a real advantage."

Having also seen Edwards take 8-40 against Nottinghamshire for the Combined Campuses and Colleges in Barbados last month, Benkenstein is confident the 33-year-old still has plenty to offer.

"It's always a bit of a risk with fast bowlers and he's a little bit of an unknown. But getting him over is a start and he looks really fit. If we can get him anywhere near his best he's going to be a handful.

"He's still got good control and has learnt how to bowl. And if we want him to bowl quick in short bursts we have that option."

Edwards' only cricket commitment before his arrival at Hampshire is with St Lucia Zouks in the Caribbean Premier League in June.

ADVANTAGE

Benkenstein reckons that is an advantage.

"He hasn't been playing much cricket which is a good thing. His white-ball skills are very good and he'll join us fresh right at the beginning of the 50-over comp when some of the bowlers will have had three months of hard work.

"He hasn't being playing Test match after Test match and will come off the CPL so he's not going to be under done."

If all goes well, Edwards could be back at Hampshire next season.

"He may be back with us for a couple of years, that's what he wants to do," confirmed Benkenstein.

It would be no surprise if teenage fast bowler Brad Wheal has made his first-team debut by the time Edwards arrives, given the impression he has made in pre-season.

Brought over from South Africa on a development contract after being spotted by Benkenstein playing for Natal U19s, the British passport holder aims to qualify for England in the next seven years.

"He's impressing every day," enthused Benkenstein. "A few eyebrows were raised in practice this week, he's not done himself any harm.

"He had a chance to go to Surrey but I nicked him off [Surrey coach] Graham Ford, who knows him best – I only met him this year so he's a bit of an unknown, even to me.

"What I've seen of him in South Africa is there's very little that can go wrong with his action.

"It's very natural and he really wanted to play cricket in England and he doesn't want to play for South Africa.

"He sees more opportunities for him here and he's right."

"He's had big decisions to make but is very clear what he wants to do and we don't have many local bowlers coming through.

"We want to give him that opportunity."

Wheal impressed in taking two wickets in this week's friendly against Kent.

"He was also excellent in Barbados," continued Benkenstein. "His basics are very good, he doesn't bowl many bad balls and is not a number 11 – he's got some ability with the bat.

"But he's still only 18."

Hampshire are not averse to giving debuts to teenagers, but there are other options post-Coles.

"Colesy's efforts on the field were incredible but as a group you only need to put a few percentages together to make up the percentages lost to fill that hole quite easily," said Benkenstein.

DEPTH

"There's depth there. Chris Wood wasn't available [this time] last year and Gareth Berg gives me the option of balancing the team out nicely.

"Colesy's batting was hit and miss but Woody and Gareth are proper batters and will probably give me more consistent runs.

"Woody showed last year that he's pretty much a strike bowler. I need to look after him, we have to be aware of his knee and Gareth hasn't played for a year so we probably wouldn't have them for the rest of the season if we were to play either of them in every game for the first six weeks.

"But they're ready to go. If I can mix the two of them as one player we'll get them through the whole season and we've got Yasir Arafat as well.

"We're also one of the few clubs with two very good spinners [in slow left-armers Danny Briggs and Liam Dawson].

"They're experienced players now, they're not just youngsters. They made huge strides last year, playing a big role on the fourth day of games, and we're expecting them to improve this year.

"They've still got a lot to learn but if we keep them going that really balances our team off properly."

ADAMS IS READY TO PROVE HIMSELF AGAIN AT AGE OF 39

AS HAMPSHIRE'S oldest player since the great Robin Smith, Andre Adams fully expects plenty of time in the treatment room during the next three months.

At 39, the former Nottinghamshire seamer will be Hampshire's oldest debutant in living memory.

And should he return for a second stint he would be the county's most aged frontline bowler since the legendary Derek Shackleton played his last game as a 45-year-old in 1969.

"I'll probably spend quite a lot of time in the treatment room and keep things lubed up like an old car," he smiled, during a break in preparations for his first game in eight months.

Adams had knee surgery in December and only last week a cortisone injection on his right elbow.

He has been ruled out of the opening game against Sussex tomorrow but expects to be available for next week's match against Warwickshire at Edgbaston.

"The jab was only the second of my career and in the same place. The elbow's been an ongoing issue for years but the jab's got me to a place where it's manageable and once I start playing it frees up."

Initially, Adams was going to play in Auckland's last first-class match of 2014-15 to prepare for his first Hampshire stint.

"Having a jab was better for Hampshire because the number one priority is that I can bowl pain free," he said.

"But I didn't get much sympathy from the doctor, he just stuck it in there and told me to get on with it!

"The surgery on the knee was the big one. I had a small bucket tear of the meniscus (cartilage tissue) at the end of last season but it wasn't diagnosed till I got home.

"Once it was diagnosed it was pretty straightforward. It's amazing what they can do nowadays – I was able to walk on it the next day.

"It's no big deal now, it's just a case of getting back out there."

If he is anywhere near his best, Adams will be a very useful addition the next three months, during which time he hopes to play in nine Championship matches before celebrating his 40th birthday in July.

DANGERMAN: Andre Adams, pictured taking the wicket of Michael Lumb in 2008, has taken 40 wickets at 17 apiece against Hampshire.

With a career tally of 424 LV County Championship wickets at 25.77 for Essex (2004-06) and Notts – including 36 at 28 apiece last season – Adams' record speaks for itself.

Hampshire will be glad to have him on their side, having lost 40 Championship wickets at just 17 apiece to the Kiwi over the last decade or so.

But the affable Adams knows that record counts for nothing as he prepares to replace Wasim Akram, pictured below, as Hampshire's oldest post-war debutant.

"I still consider myself good enough to be playing first-class cricket but whenever you go somewhere new you have to prove yourself again and that's the challenge for me," he said.

It was at the end of last season that Adams agreed to extend his playing career with Hampshire, due to a three-month window in his new career as a coach.

He has been impressed with what he has seen since flying over from Auckland at the beginning of this week.

"You have to like what you see down here. It's a nice mix, there's a lot of experience in the side and also some exciting young players," he continued.

"I like seeing that they're a very tight team, how they go about their business and that they have what it takes to go to the next level.

"Part of my role is to help the young guys so it's an exciting time to be here and hopefully I'll be able to have an influence."

Adams, who was born in Auckland, is staying at the Botley Park Hotel. "I'm a country boy at heart so love it down here, it's beautiful.

"Every time I come here I get lost on the back roads!"

He is confident that he and Hampshire will remain on course for a successful season over the next few months.

"I'll take one game at a time but having said that the more I play the better the body feels so if I get a run on and keep going hopefully there's no reason to stop," he said.

"The standard here is always very good, it's hard cricket but everyone's aspirations should be very high.

"It's not what people say, it's what they do, but there's no reason why we can't win the comp if we put our minds to it."

ACTION JACKSON

Bird targeting championship wickets and Test recall

AIMING FOR A CALL-UP: Jackson Bird hopes to play Ashes cricket this summer.

JACKSON Bird is determined to boost his Ashes chances by excelling for Hampshire in the LV County Championship.

The 28-year-old was left out of Australia's Ashes squad a fortnight ago but remains hopeful that he will play a part in the series, two years after playing the last of his three Tests, against England at Durham, writes SIMON WALTER.

"I'm on standby for the Ashes so if I'm doing well over here and someone gets injured then hopefully I'll get the call-up," said Bird, who took 11 wickets at just 16 apiece in the first two of his three Tests in Sri Lanka two-and-a-half years ago.

He took 2-125 as England won at the Riverside in August 2013.

But a back injury meant he only played one match in 15 months after that, forcing him out of what would have been his first county stint last March.

"I was meant to play for Northants but unfortunately got injured just before I was meant to come over so it's nice to finally get here," he said.

Bird made his comeback for Tasmania in the Sheffield Shield in November, taking 18 wickets at 33 apiece during a winter in which he also helped the Melbourne Stars to the semi-finals of the Big Bash.

"I rested for four months and was lucky enough to play a lot of cricket just before Christmas," he said.

"As the summer went I got more confidence in my body so my pace was a lot more consistent towards the end of the season.

ADVICE: George Bailey.

"I've definitely brought that confidence over here, and am just excited to be on the park after 18 months on and off."

Bird has subsequently been ruled out of Hampshire's first game with a shoulder strain sustained during this week's friendly against Kent.

But he is expected to be fit for the next match against Warwickshire at Edgbaston on April 19.

"It's a good opportunity for me and I'm grateful for Hampshire for it," he said.

"I've chatted to [Tasmania teammate and former Hampshrie batsman] George Bailey about what to expect and hopefully I'll take a few wickets and we'll do well in division one.

"It's nice to be with a new group of cricketers and see how they go about their business.

"The top order's very strong and there are a couple of good bowlers as well.

"There are a lot of people to learn from so it's about having the confidence to believe we can do well in division one and I think the boys definitely do."

Assuming Australia do not need to replace any of their Ashes seamers (Ryan Harris, Peter Siddle, Mitchell Starc, Mitchell Johnson and Josh Hazlewood), Bird could extend his stint with Hampshire.

"There's the option to do that," he said.

"But it would also depend on how my body's going because the Australian summer's my priority."

Bird is also likely to play some part in the T20 Blast.

"It's a matter of looking at the schedule and seeing when is best to rest," he explained.

Bird did not make his first-class debut until a month before his 26th birthday and has an impressive tally of 133 wickets at 23 apiece from the 33 matches he has played.

That includes four matches during Australia A's tours of England in 2012-13, from which he took ten wickets at 39.5 against England Lions, Derbyshire and Gloucestershire.

He also enjoyed a brief stint with Ealing CC in 2008, taking 11 wickets at 20.9 in the Middlesex County League.

It is the away games against Middlesex CCC at nearby Lord's in June that he is most looking forward to.

"I was 13th man in the Test there so playing there will be great," he said.

WHITE OUT TO MINE RICH SEAM

Simon Walter
simon.walter@dailyecho.co.uk
CRICKET REPORTER

HAMPSHIRE director of cricket Giles White admits one of the county's main challenges is producing homegrown fast bowlers.

South African teenager Brad Wheal has already made a big impression at The Ageas Bowl since his arrival last month.

But White wants to see more local seamers coming through the academy.

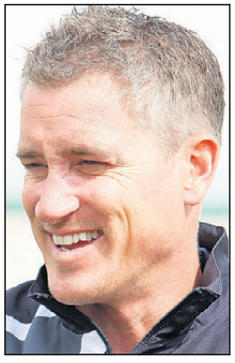
"There's a gap there," he admits. "We're producing batsmen; Joe Weatherley is captaining England Under-19s and will soon be pushing through and we've also got Sean Terry.

"We've got another two spin bowlers in Brad Taylor and Mason Crane and another wicketkeeper in Lewis Mcmanus.

"But we haven't seen fast bowlers come through in the same manner so I've looked at the system in place with our academy director Bobby Parks to try and produce fast bowlers to keep us in good health further down the line."

Tom Barber has followed fellow homegrown left-armers Chris Wood and James Tomlinson into the first-team squad but along with Chris Tremlett, now of Surrey, and David Griffiths, now of Kent, they have been the exception over the last 15 years.

Durham have had no problem in that regard so is the contrast to do with the less favourable seam conditions in the south?



HOMEGROWN PUSH: Giles White.

"I don't know what it is; mentality maybe?" continued White. "Chris and Tomo are in their thirties now so it's been a while since we've had one come through.

RAW TALENT

"But at least the raw talent's there. Tom Barber's probably the quickest of the bowlers coming through. He's got to hone that talent but he's talented and capable of bowling spells of first-class quality.

"And we had an U17 from Milford School impressing against James Vince and Jimmy Adams in the nets last week. He's got something to offer."

Since his debut in 2002,Tomlinson has taken 344 Championship wickets at 31 apiece and is using all the experience he has gained to help the next crop of Hampshire seamers.

"Tomo's doing a bloody good job with the Emerging Players Programme, his energy has been outstanding," continues White.

"I obviously want him to play as long as possible but I can see him joining our coaching staff.

"He's made a very good start with the EPP. The horrendous crash on the M27 last week meant a lot of youngsters coming in for a coaching session with Tomo were stuck in traffic.

"It was absolutely chocca but only one of them missed it. The rest got out of their cars and ran to the ground from Hedge End to make sure they made the session!

"They wanted to be there and that says a lot to me. It says Tomo's doing a good job so I'm very pleased with the way he's taken to the role."

In the short term, White is pleased with the more experienced bowling recruits; Andre Adams, Jackson Bird, Yasir Arafat, Gareth Berg and Fidel Edwards.

He said: "We'll have Andre and Jackson for the lion's share of the Championship season and Arafat joining Jackson as the overseas players for the Twenty20, with Fidel Edwards playing the 50-over games and the last two months of Championship cricket.

"It all fits well in principle. We're very capable of playing good cricket so hopefully we'll be in a position halfway through where we're looking towards the top and not the bottom of the first division."

FUTURE IN COACHING: James Tomlinson.

Vince is hot to Trott: Chat with recalled Test

JAMES VINCE

IF HE makes his England debut this summer, James Vince believes he will be better prepared for it thanks to the time he spent batting with Jonathan Trott for the England Lions.

Vince and Trott were the Lions' top scorers during the two 'Tests' against South Africa A in Paarl and Bloemfontein in January.

The 525 runs they scored between them (261 at 130.5 for Vince and 264 for Trott at 132) included fourth-wicket stands of 165 and 115 and the latter secured a series-saving draw after the Lions had slipped to 81-3 – with Vince finishing unbeaten on 152.

Trott has been rewarded with a recall to England's squad for the three-Test series against the West Indies that begins on Monday.

Vince will surely be given his full international debut, probably in one-day competition to begin with, at some stage this year.

READY

"I'm more ready for it," said Vince who has been given Hampshire's 50-over captaincy after leading the Lions to a 3-1 win in the one-day series that followed the first-class matches, when Trott returned home. "Beating a good South Africa side and scoring runs has given me belief as it's the next best thing to international cricket.

"It was nice to come home with those runs in the bank and good to bat with and talk about batting with Jonathan Trott (pictured right). His concentration, more than anything, stands out. He has the same routine, he keeps going and going. He batted

DAWSON RELISHING TOP-FLIGHT RETURN

FIRST DIVISION EXPERIENCE: Liam Dawson.

HAMPSHIRE'S last season in the LV County Championship's first division holds mixed memories for Liam Dawson.

Simon Walter
simon.walter@dailyecho.co.uk
CRICKET REPORTER

The 25-year-old remembers 2011 as his breakthrough season as a first-class batsman.

It yielded 908 top-flight runs at an average of 36, including the two biggest hundreds of his career – 169 against Somerset and an unbeaten 152 against Warwickshire.

What is more, he scored all his runs as an opening batsman.

Ultimately that season ended in disappointment with Hampshire's relegation to the second division after seven years in the first.

But knowing he has scored big runs in the first division gives Dawson no shortage of belief ahead of the opening game of the season against Sussex.

"I had a decent year personally in 2011 and enjoyed playing on some of the best Test grounds against some of the best bowlers in the country," he said.

"If you aspire to play for England, scoring runs in division one in what you have to do."

James Vince, Danny Briggs and Chris Wood also played regularly in 2011 and are still under 25.

"We had Macca (Neil McKenzie) back then but we're better players for having three or four years more experience and have all grown up as people," continued Dawson, who is relishing the increased level of competition.

"In our first few seasons in division two we had a lot of dead games come August/September.

"As a player you still do your best but there's not that edge you want.

"In division one it's different, you can be in a battle to stay up as well as one at the top.

"We were in a battle against relegation for a few seasons in division one, which you don't want.

"But it meant there was always something to play for. We'll aim to win the first division this year – our batting's as good as anyone."

As well as improving Hampshire's attack, the arrival of Andre Adams, pictured above, has also reminded Dawson of his last season in division one, particularly the second game that year at Trent Bridge. Adams recorded match figures of 11-85 as Hampshire lost by nine wickets.

"He got me out in the second innings [when he took 6-31] during one of the best spells of bowling I've ever faced, so it will be nice to have him on our side.

"Jackson Bird's also a proven performer and another good lad."

Dawson is hoping for a similar runs return to 2013, when he scored a career-best 1,060 first-class runs at 48, after missing two months of last season due to a groin injury sustained in the opening T20 Blast match.

He is ready to go after playing in Bangladesh and Australia during the winter. He spent five weeks before Christmas playing in Bangladesh's one -day competition, the highlight being a top score of 113.

"The wickets in Bangladesh don't really spin and the bounce is variable so it's sometimes hard to score which was a really good test for my batting. It's a tough place to play for both bowlers and batsmen."

After Christmas he played three months of grade cricket for Melville CC with Hampshire teammate Adam Wheater.

"It was decent cricket and it was good to have another Hampshire lad there but I was disappointed with the wickets," said Dawson, who is also hoping to develop his slow left-arm skills this season.

"I thought the wickets would be a lot better than they were but it was good for my bowling!

"They spun a lot, so from that point of view they were brilliant and I bowled pretty well in one-day cricket. But they were tough to bat on which was disappointing.

"After the frustration of last year, when I didn't play as much as I wanted to, that kept me ticking over.

"And I've trained hard so hopefully that stands me in good stead."

star prepares James for England duty for I don't know how many hours but it was more than day.

"It's good to see him back in the fold and hopefully he goes well."

Vince played for three seasons in division one (1,800 runs at 30.5) before the last three in division two (3,043 runs at 50.7).

He returns a more disciplined player.

"My game's changed a lot, my game's definitely different from our previous spell in division one, my batting's got better and better," he said.

"But I would probably have learnt quicker in division one against the stronger sides so it's good to be back. It will be interesting to see what we come up against but I'm sure the guys here are capable of dealing with it. It was very enjoyable to have success in four-day cricket last year, it's something we've wanted for a few years and hopefully we can be as successful in division one.

"The squad's looking in good shape and we're looking forward to the challenge. Jackson Bird and Andre Adams will I'm sure have a big impact, Bergy's done well in pre-season and not many would put their hand up to face Fidel Edwards.

BUILDING

"We'll try and win every game which in reality probably won't happen. But building towards challenging for the title in the next couple of years is realistic."

So is an ODI debut for Vince, particularly after England's World Cup debacle.

"I try not to focus on it," said the 24-year-old who, like most England fans, missed much of the World Cup due to the timings. "It's tough to know what's going on from the outside," he said. "Guys were out of form which is not what you need, you want all guys firing.

"It just wasn't to be."

SPIN STAR: Richie Benaud bowling in 1956

Farewell to voice of the game

PERFECT DELIVERY: Richie Benaud in the commentary box

AUSTRALIAN Prime Minister Tony Abbott and Test captain Michael Clarke led the tributes following the death of the revered former national skipper and broadcaster Richie Benaud, aged 84.

News of the Benaud's death prompted cricket fans the world over to remember a pioneering player, who never lost a series while leading Australia, that went on to become one of the game's best loved voices.

The former leg-spinner and middle-order batsman was the first person to score over 2,000 runs and take 200 Test wickets in Test cricket before moving into a career in the media.

And he was as cherished in England, where he worked on television with the BBC and then Channel 4 from 1963 to 2005, as he was in his homeland on Channel Nine for his measured, laconic brand of commentary.

Abbott has promised a state funeral for the family of Benaud, telling a press conference in Brisbane shown by ABC News in Australia: "There would be very few Australians who have not passed a summer in the company of Richie Benaud.

"He was the accompaniment of an Australian summer, his voice was even more present than the chirping of the cicadas in our suburbs and towns, and that voice, tragically, is now still.

"But we remember him with tremendous affection.

"He hasn't just been the voice of cricket since the early 1960s, he was an extraordinarily successful Australian cricket captain.

"He led our country for five years in 28 Tests, and he never lost a Test series. He was the first cricketer to achieve the remarkable double of 2,000 Test runs and 200 Test wickets.

"This is the greatest loss for cricket since the loss of Don Bradman and for that reason I'm pleased to have offered the Benaud family a state funeral."

> "This is the greatest loss for cricket since Bradman"

Test captain Clarke believes Benaud's legacy on and off the field will leave a lasting impression.

"I think (for) everybody involved in cricket, Richie is known for a lot more than bowling a few leg-spinners and hitting a few cover drives," he told Channel Nine.

"He was a great player and a great captain, a wonderful leader of men and I think he's continued that off the field. He sets a great example, he's a gentleman, he played the game in the right spirit.

"I think all of us look up to Richie so it's a really sad day."

Benaud took a break from commentary in 2013 after being involved in a car accident and just over a year later his comeback was put on ice as he began to receive treatment for skin cancer.

He never did return to the microphone full-time but his legacy was secured and Australia coach Darren Lehmann hailed him as "one of the game's greats".

"The fact Australia never lost a series under his captaincy says so much and those standards were just as high when he turned his attention to calling the game," said Lehmann.

"We loved listening to him commentate when the team was together in the dressing room. When he was on air, we always had the TV volume turned up because his comments were so insightful."

Benaud, who finished his international career with 2,201 runs at 248 Test scalps, at one point was Australia's leading wicket-taker before his record was surpassed by Dennis Lillee and eventually Shane Warne.

One of Benaud's most famous commentaries was on the 'ball of the century' - Warne's first delivery in Ashes cricket which dismissed Mike Gatting - and the 45-year-old fellow leg-spinner paid an emotional tribute to his mentor on Instagram.

"As a cricketer, commentator & as a person, you were the best there's ever been & to top it off, an absolute gentleman..." Warne wrote.

"For me it was an honour & a privilege to call you a close friend & mentor, we had so many wonderful times together, talking cricket & in particular, our love & passion of leg spin bowling.

"Richie, you were loved by everyone, not just the cricket family, you were the godfather of cricket & you will be missed by all... R.I.P my friend."

The MCC flag at Lord's was flying at half mast on Friday as a mark of respect for Benaud, who leaves a wife, Daphne, and two sons from a previous marriage.

England coach Peter Moores said: "Richie sums up all that is great about our sport.

"He was a true gentlemen with a real insight into the game and his enthusiasm for the sport made you want to get off the sofa and play. He will be sorely missed."

India great Sachin Tendulkar described Benaud as a "wonderful personality who was always warm and encouraging (and) had great insights on the game".

Benaud's fellow broadcasters hailed Benaud's influence, led by Test Match Special's Jonathan Agnew. Agnew wrote on bbc.co.uk: "He was quite simply peerless. Nobody else had his authority, popularity and skill."

Nasser Hussain told Sky Sports News: "He is exactly what you set your standards by, the way he did it, the delivery of his lines."

Hussain's Sky colleague and fellow former England captain Mike Atherton added: "One of the first things he said to me was 'you're a guest in somebody's front room for six hours a day, so try not to irritate them'."

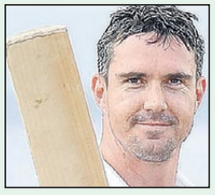
COUNTY CRICKET INS AND OUTS

THE forthcoming English county cricket season promises to be a fascinating campaign.

Some of the world's top names will appear at some point over the next few months.

Somerset have signed West Indian box office star Chris Gayle for a handful of NatWest T20 Blast games.



Ex-Hampshire men Glenn Maxwell and Shahid Afridi have been snapped up by Yorkshire and Northants respectively.

And then there is Kevin Pietersen, above, yet another former Ageas Bowl star.

KP has recently re-signed for Surrey and will play Championship cricket in a bid to force his way back into the England reckoning.

Here, the Sports Pink rounds up the ins and outs around the 18 first class counties.

SPORTS EDITOR

IT is one of the hardest sporting competitions to predict.

It is the division where teams who win the the title one year are relegated the next.

It is a division where teams promoted into it from the second tier can end up winning the title at the first attempt.

That rules out football's Premier League, obviously.

Never in the history of the English top flight has the defending champions been demoted 12 months later.

And the last club to win the top flight at the first time of asking was Brian Clough's Nottingham Forest in 1977/78.

No, it is cricket's County Championship top division that I am talking about.

There have been five different winners in the last five seasons – Nottinghamshire, Lancashire, Warwickshire, Durham and Yorkshire.

Throw in Sussex, who won it in 2007, and there have been six different winners in the last eight seasons.

Compare that to the Premier League, where in the same period there have been three champions – the two Manchester clubs and Chelsea.

In 2001, Yorkshire won the County Championship title. Somerset were runners-up

Twelve months later Yorkshire were relegated. And so were Somerset.

Imagine that scenario happening in the Premier League? Or rugby union's Premiership?

In 2004, Nottinghamshire won the second tier of the Championship with Hampshire, skippered for the first time that summer by Shane Warne, also promoted as runners-up.

Twelve months later, in the memorable 2005 Ashes-winning season, Nottinghamshire won the title. And Hampshire were second.

It's the equivalent of Leicester and Burnley finishing first and second in the Premier League this season.

In 2006, 12 months after being crowned the champion county, Notts were relegated.

And so it goes on.

Sussex won the Championship in 2006 and 2007, yet in 2008 were relegated.

Lancashire won the title in 2011 – remarkably, their first outright title win since 1934 – yet were relegated a year later.

Promoted in 2013, the Red Rose county went down again in 2014.

Such inconsistencies are rife.

Worcestershire, for example, have been relegated four times since 2004, and promoted four times.

Yorkshire were demoted from the top flight in 2011 along with Hampshire, yet within three years had been crowned champions for a record 31st time (they have also shared the title once).

With all that in mind, who could possibly put money on the destination of the 2015 silverware and the £500,000 cheque that goes with it.

Yes, half a million pounds for the best team in English cricket.

Compared to the riches available in the football Premier League.

Until only a few years ago, the winners of cricket's Championship – the ultimate honour in the domestic game – received only £100,000.

PAST FORM: Michael Carberry

There are many Premier League footballers earning more than that in a week.

Even as recently as 2007, the runners-up in the cricket Championship banked a paltry £40,000.

Now they receive around £225,000 – still a pittance compared to what the Premier League runners-up will bank.

Of course, though, in a way there is no point making such comparisons.

Premier League games are watched by tens of thousands of people, and cricket County Championship games aren't.

At times, there will only be a few hundred at county grounds up and down the country watching some of the nation's best players.

That is life of the county cricket professional with regards to the first class game.

It has been that way for countless years now, and will almost certainly remain so.

Nevertheless, that doesn't make the competition any less thrilling, or unpredictable.

With regards to the forthcoming season, the main question locally is whether Hampshire can re-establish themselves as a real force in the four-day game.

It wasn't that long ago that they were one of the best teams in the country.

In 2005 they finished runners-up, only a couple of points behind champions Nottinghamshire.

And that was in a season where tal-

IMPOSSIBLE GAME TO PREDICT

SNAP HAPPY: Some sponsors get a selfie with the Hampshire squad

ismanic skipper Shane Warne missed a large chunk of games due to his Ashes commitments.

Hampshire were also denied the services of Simon Katich and Kevin Pietersen for the same reason.

Had those three been available for a few more games, the title would almost certainly have arrived for the first time since 1973.

Hampshire were also third in 2006 and 2008, while they were fifth in 2007 – the latter the last year Warne appeared for them.

The county certainly have the players to do well in the top flight, based on previous form.

Skipper Jimmy Adams, Michael Carberry and Will Smith have both scored over 1,000 top flight Championship runs before.

TOP WICKET-TAKER: James Tomlinson

James Vince has been tipped as one of the most promising batsmen in county cricket for several years now, and so this is a big season for him coming up.

He scored more Championship runs in 2014 – 1,524 – than anyone else.

Yet he scored them in the second tier, and there is a big difference between the standard of some teams in the top flight and the next division down.

Bowling-wise, James Tomlinson was the Championship's top wicket-taker in 2008 with 67 victims.

The Winchester-born seamer turns 33 this summer and will be keen to show he can still be a major threat to top flight batsmen.

With Hampshire having recently lost Matt Coles back to Kent, Tomlinson's experience of English conditions will be vital.

Australian Test quickie Jackson Bird is Hampshire's early-season overseas player.

This is his first stint in English county cricket, and many eyes will be on him.

Bird was supposed to start the 2014 county season with Northamptonshire, but he had to pull out due to a recurrence of a back injury.

The player has recovered enough to play seven games for Tasmania in the 2014/15 Sheffield Shield, taking 18 wickets at 33.27.

WILL WHITE ROSES WILT?

CHAMPIONS: But will Andrew Gale be lifting the trophy again this year?

THE new LV= County Championship season begins this weekend.

Here, the Sports Pink looks at some of the main talking points for the season ahead.

CAN YORKSHIRE RETAIN THEIR TITLE, EVEN WITH SO MANY ENGLAND CALL-UPS LIKELY TO AFFECT THEM?

Yorkshire already know for sure six of their best will be away in the Caribbean with England during their first three Division One fixtures.

And, such is the schedule facing the national team this summer, it is highly unlikely the White Rose personnel will ever be in full bloom.

Captain Andrew Gale will miss the season opener at Worcestershire too, as he completes his controversial disciplinary ban from the end of last term.

Gale picked up a two-match ban after bad-mouthing Ashwell Prince in Yorkshire's match against Lancashire, his second such offence of the season.

As a result of missing the last game of the campaign, the ECB also stopped him collecting the trophy in the official post-match presentation ceremony.

After watching Joe Root collect the trophy and pose for photographs from the dressing-room balcony, Gale then came out to hold the trophy aloft to the throngs of Yorkshire supporters.

They responded with the biggest cheer of the day.

Yorkshire's initial task in the new season will be to harness any frustration – especially if several of their stars are carrying the many drinks in the Caribbean - and make sure their defence gets off to a sound start.

It is their batting stocks which will be hit most, but there were strong hints in their curtain-raiser win over the MCC that there is strength in depth to compensate.

Yorkshire retain a formidable force with the ball, but will be hoping they see their fair share of Adil Rashid's leg-spin as the season progresses.

A 32nd outright title is a distinct possibility.

WHO ARE THE MOST PLAUSIBLE CONTENDERS TO USURP THE WHITE ROSE?

Warwickshire finished closest last year, while third-placed Sussex have made some eye-catching additions to their seam attack.

It could be the sternest challenge comes from Nottinghamshire, though.

Gale returns for the first time when Yorkshire head to Trent Bridge for their second match of the campaign.

Nottinghamshire had to watch their neighbours parade the championship silverware in front of their own pavilion last September - but their time may soon come.

It is hard to spot their weakness, and they have made another clutch of canny signings in the close season.

WHICH OVERSEAS PLAYERS WILL DO THE BUSINESS?

Nottinghamshire's seam-and-swing pair of Vernon Philander and Ben Hilfenhaus, set to dovetail through the summer, will surely love their new home conditions.

In Division Two, it is hard to look past Kumar Sangakkara for banker impact at The Oval.

Gloucestershire's Peter Handscomb is an undoubted rising star who captures the imagination, and Derbyshire signing Martin Guptill's stock has risen dramatically of late.

Guptill was one of the stars of the recent World Cup, smashing a sensational 237 not out for New Zealand in their quarter final victory over the West Indies.

His ODI batting average of 39.77 is much better than his Test one of 29.62, though.

... AND WHICH ONES HAVE POINTS TO PROVE?

This seems a churlish category.

But of those with challenges to face, it will be interesting to see how brilliant Pakistani off-spinner Saeed Ajmal fares in 2015 as promoted Worcestershire's long-serving overseas after updating his action.

There is also the qurestion as to whether Jesse Ryder can be a big hit at Essex again following another awkward winter.

WILL HEAVYWEIGHTS LANCASHIRE AND SURREY REGAIN TOP-FLIGHT STATUS?

Surrey's campaign will not be all about Kevin Pietersen, of course.

Nonetheless, his mere presence will have an inevitable impact.

There will be no low-profile matches for the Londoners while he is around - and they will need to make sure they deal with the spotlight and the KP roadshow does not become a distraction.

If the record-breaking batsman clicks, however, for Surrey it can only be good while it lasts – before Pietersen achieves or abandons his goal of a Test return.

There will be none of that with Sangakkara - and, still apparently at the height of his powers, he seems the safest of bets to keep churning out the runs.

Who takes the wickets could be more of a problem - and not one obviously facing Lancashire, even though Peter Siddle will miss the majority of the campaign due to his commitments with Australia.

Tom Smith looks a very sensible choice as a new, home-grown captain - and Lancashire the likelier to edge this battle and bounce back from last summer's relegation.

FIVE TO WATCH OUT FOR...

EYE-CATCHING SIGNING: Kumar Sangakkara will be at Surrey this season

FIVE PLAYERS TO WATCH OUT FOR IN THE COUNTY CHAMPIONSHIP IN 2015

JACK BROOKS (Yorkshire): Brooks had all the credentials of a crowd favourite at Headingley when he moved from Northamptonshire.

The Headband Warrior's first season was promising, but interrupted by injury.

Last year, he delivered with 68 wickets towards Yorkshire's championship title.

Brooks' roots in 'village cricket' are perhaps a little misleading - Tiddington play in a decent league - but he has come a long way nonetheless, with power to add to the delight of his new public.

SAM HAIN (Warwickshire): You would need to look to Ian Bell at the start of the century for the last time the nods and knowing looks at Edgbaston told a similar story about a teenage batsman.

In just his fifth first-class innings last summer, Hong Kong-born Hain broke Bell's record as the Bears' youngest championship centurion - and soon followed up by becoming the youngest to make a double-hundred.

It is the way he does it too that has already convinced many good judges Hain will play for England - his stated ambition despite formative years in Australia, where he represented the national Under-19s.

Expect a second summer of significant progression.

TYMAL MILLS (Sussex): England's World Cup experience has taught them a few things - not least that they need variety in their attack in all formats.

It may be a more pressing requirement with a white ball but there is no doubt any decent set of figures from a left-arm seamer this summer will be relayed pronto to Lord's.

Reece Topley at Essex and Derbyshire's Mark Footitt, after his wonderful 2014, will be on the radar among others.

Mills has the pace - if not yet the figures - enough to send Graeme Swann off for an unscheduled X-ray at the start of an Ashes summer, in 2013.

If as with others, a move to Sussex pays off for the former Essex bowler, 22-year-old Mills could find himself on the fast track.

KUMAR SANGAKKARA (Surrey): Kevin Pietersen will have his own Oval roadshow, of course - in early season at least.

But of all the eye-catching overseas signings, Sri Lanka great Sangakkara is surely the banker bet.

Since announcing the last lap of his international career, 'Sanga' went up another level with a brilliant run of one-day international scores, including at the World Cup where he scored four centuries – 105 v Bangladesh, 117 not out v England, 104 v Australia and 124 v Scotland.

At 37, before his anticipated final Test assignment against Pakistan in August, he will be determined to add to his already outstanding CV containing over 14,000 ODI runs and 12,200 Test runs (including 38 centuries).

NICK COMPTON (Middlesex): 'Compton's Return to Lord's' sounds like a throwback headline, of course.

But the former Somerset opener has earned the right to his own newsprint, 'clicks' and 'likes'.

Compton has been prolific at Taunton for the past three seasons - more than 1,000 runs each summer.

Whatever the exact reasoning for his decision to part company and then return to Middlesex, at 31 it could yet be another twist en route to more international recognition.

The fashion may be for faster scoring in all formats, and England appear to have said farewell after Compton's sudden fall from favour before the 2013 Ashes.

His Test statistics were far from disastrous, though; the Test top order remains unsettled, and – in a different context – incoming England and Wales Cricket Board chairman Colin Graves has been at pains to stress a clean slate for all.

At any rate, presumably opening with another England discard Sam Robson, Compton can expect some column inches back in the capital.

Impossible to predict

Hampshire also produced a minor surprise in the close season when they announced the short-term signing of veteran seamer Andre Adams.

The 39-year-old New Zealander Adams, 39, will spend three months at The Ageas Bowl before taking up a coaching role in Auckland.

He underwent knee surgery during the winter, and it is not known how much of a role he will have in his limited time at West End.

Adams was not the only thirtysomething to arrive at Hampshire in the close season.

A few weeks ago the county announced the signing of 34-year-old Gareth Berg from Middlesex.

He averages almost 30 with the bat from 72 first class games, and has also taken 141 first class wickets.

The South African was included in a strong-looking Hampshire XI that played against Loughborough University last week, and is therefore in line to face Sussex in the opening Championship game this weekend.

Overall, Hampshire should have enough about them to avoid relegation.

But who knows? That is the great thing about the County Championship, as I illustrated earlier.

I don't know. You don't know.

Hampshire could go straight back down, they could end up challenging for the title.

There are certainly players with something to prove.

Not least Michael Carberry, whose England Test career is almost certainly now over.

He can get down to scoring a bucketful of first class runs to show the selectors they were wrong to jettison him.

With regards to the one-day game, Hampshire again look strong.

Over the past decade, they have been one of the strongest and most consistent counties.

They have lifted three one-day trophies at Lord's – in 2005, 2009 and 2012 – as well as two T20 titles in 2010 and 2012.

They have been to the T20 finals day five years running, a superb achievement.

The addition of Yasir Arafat looks a canny signing given the player's huge experience of English conditions.

Glenn Maxwell, fresh from helping Australia win the World Cup, won't be returning for a third t20 stint with Hampshire in 2015.

Instead, he will be turning out for Yorkshire.

Maxwell was a huge disappointment in the shortest form of the game for Hampshire last year, though.

The county don't appear to have a box office star of the same ilk as Maxwell or Shahid Afridi this year.

But they have a winning formula in T20 cricket, honed over many years, and they are very hard to beat.

RICH PICKINGS

LOVELY BUBBLY: Yorkshire celebrate winning last season's Division One County Championship.

Reigning champions look set to overcome losing England six

THE 'Bank of Colin Graves' has closed, but there could still be rich dividends on the pitch again for Yorkshire this summer.

Six of the best from the White Rose, of course, will be missing for at least their first four LV= County Championship Division One matches – and it is six years since Durham became the last team to rack up successive titles, writes DAVID CLOUGH.

Graves has swapped Headingley for Lord's and will officially begin his tenure as the England and Wales Cricket Board's new chairman next month.

He made it clear – at Yorkshire's annual general meeting last week, as he bade farewell to the club in which he has invested so heavily – that it is time for those he leaves behind to continue his work.

But there is an undoubted will to do so and, even in the absence of those six initially on England duty for the Test tour of West Indies this month and next, the playing resources remain too.

Certainly, that was the evidence of Yorkshire's resounding win over MCC in the mid-March curtain-raiser fixture in Abu Dhabi.

Seam linchpin Jack Brooks and emerging batsman Jack Leaning both made encouraging contributions there for a team led by young opener Alex Lees – all of whom will be available when Yorkshire begin the defence of their 31st title away to promoted Worcestershire this Sunday.

Club captain Andrew Gale will again be relegated to spectator capacity at New Road, as he was controversially when Yorkshire clinched last summer's silverware at Trent Bridge, completing his ECB disciplinary ban.

Even so, as long as Yorkshire can channel any frustration over that and their men away in the Caribbean through a tricky set of early fixtures, they will surely be major contenders again this summer.

Their return to Nottinghamshire, for just their second match of the campaign, will bring an ironic twist as Gale makes his comeback at the venue where he was prevented from joining the celebrations last September.

It could also prove a pivotal match - because Notts, fourth last time round, look as potent a force as any to stand in the way of a White Rose follow-up.

In Vernon Philander, and then Ben Hilfenhaus, they have recruited cannily a horses-for-courses package at a home ground where each of the two new Test class seam-and-swing bowlers should prosper.

Brendan Taylor, on a non-overseas contract but with Test pedigree, has the class too to make lots of runs in England - while James Taylor retains obvious Test aspirations and will be making sure the selectors have to take notice.

Others, notably Samit Patel even if England are no longer interested in his considerable talents, give Notts a very solid look.

Of the other title contenders, recent winners Warwickshire were runners-up last time and again enter consideration, while Sussex - who have made two eye-catching but far from banker signings in Tymal Mills and Ajmal Shahzad - could be gearing up for another challenge.

Middlesex's hopes of security have been hit by Adam Voges' Ashes call-up.

They, like relegated Lancashire who lost Peter Siddle for the same reason at the 11th hour, are urgently seeking an effective replacement.

It will be easy for neither, and both the Londoners' well-being in the top flight and Lancashire's prospects of bouncing back may have suffered a lasting blow.

There will be a significant return to Lord's, though, for Nick Compton - and it is not beyond the bounds that he could yet press for an England recall, depending on the fortunes of others ahead of him, through weight of runs.

HAMPSHIRE PLAYER PROFILES – TURN BACK TO PAGES 26-27

If some eyes in the capital will be turned towards Compton, though, many more will be trained over the river at another prodigal presence.

It will be inevitable that much early-season championship coverage is dominated not by the fortunes of champions Yorkshire, or anyone else in the top flight, but in Division Two - by Kevin Pietersen, and his success or otherwise back in four-day cricket for Surrey.

There is a bigger picture for Surrey, to try to retain the status their heavyweight history demands, and one of the hurdles will be to avoid early distractions from the KP roadshow and ensure others do not establish a telling advantage in the hectic opening weeks.

Essex, close to going up last time, are scheduled to be Pietersen's first Oval opponents at the end of this month - and they appeal too as a team that could be in the mix for promotion.

Most counties will have no more than five championship matches left through the last two months of the season, so banking points by then will be crucial in both divisions - especially if limited-overs prizes begin to enter the equation.

Notts, Warwickshire and Yorkshire are obvious candidates to be battling on two fronts or more by August.

Of those likeliest to stay the course, Yorkshire and Notts could be in for a tight tussle at the top.

And with or without any remaining Pietersen intrigue, on the back of plenty of runs from Kumar Sangakkara, Surrey ought to be well-positioned to rejoin them in the top flight.

Dawson impressed by teenage speedster

HAMPSHIRE all-rounder Liam Dawson reckons Brad Wheal is one to watch this season.

The 25-year-old believes Hampshire have unearthed a gem in the teenage fast bowler from Natal.

"Brad Wheal's probably impressed me the most out of everyone, obviously never having seen him before," said Dawson. "I faced him in the nets a couple of days ago and he's a proper bowler. He's one to look out for that's for sure.

"For his age the way he thinks about the game is well ahead of his years. I think the length he bowls, at a decent pace, will make him very effective.

"He attacks the stumps and bowls a full length and doesn't bowl much rubbish. He bowls a length that has you thinking every ball.

"If he's right on it and there's something in the wicket he can make the most of it and the stronger he gets the and the more he learns about county cricket the better he'll be."

BIG WHEAL

Brad so quick to impress

PROMISE: Brad Wheal.
Picture courtesy of Dave Vokes (LMI Photography).

HE IS only 18 and is yet to play a first-class match, but it says much for Brad Wheal that he has created as exciting a first impression on his Hampshire teammates as the county's more experienced new signings.

Andre Adams, Jackson Bird, Yasir Arafat and Fidel Edwards have all played Test cricket but it is the lesser-known Wheal who has been the talk of the Ageas Bowl since arriving with Dale Benkenstein on a two-year development contract.

After taking two wickets in this week's friendly against Kent – both his victims were caught in the slips – no doubt word is already getting round the county circuit that Hampshire have found themselves a player.

Wheal is certainly ambitious. "I'd obviously like to break into the first team as soon as I can and once I'm there perform as well as I can," he said.

Simon Walter
simon.walter@dailyecho.co.uk
CRICKET REPORTER

"I hope to be opening the bowling sometime soon and bat in the middle order. In the future I see myself as an all-rounder."

Like Benkenstein, Wheal comes from Durban and was spotted by Hampshire's first-team coach playing for Natal U19s in December.

After meeting his teammates during the fortnight in Barbados last month, he has settled in well at The Ageas Bowl, where he is staying in a cottage on the ground with fellow rookies Tom Barber , pictured, and Tom Alsop.

"Barbados was incredible and everyone's been very welcoming, I already feel at home here and have been trying my best to impress everyone that I come across," said Wheal.

"I'm just getting used to the conditions at the moment. I struggled a bit in the first two training sessions but I'm getting into the swing of it. It's all going well.

"There are one or two technical things I'm working on with [bowling coach] Craig White to control the swing and use it more effectively.

"It's all about getting the basics right but I'm getting there."

Three years ago, the England and Wales Cricket Board extended the residential qualification for overseas players to seven years.

It would still have been four for Wheal – as it was for Kevin Pietersen – had he moved over before his 18th birthday.

But he will still only be 25 when he qualifies for England. Playing for his adopted country is his ultimate ambition.

"I'm lucky I've been given this opportunity to grow my career at quite a young age," said Wheal, whose chances of playing first-class cricket in South Africa are stymied by the quota system that persuaded Pietersen to leave Natal for Notts in 2001.

"After seven years of being here for 210 days a year I'll be England qualified," explained Wheal, who has a British passport through his mother, who was born in the UK before moving to South Africa with her family as a child. "I'll be back home with family for the rest of the time but have felt at home here, I'm really enjoying it."

Without wanting to big Wheal up too much, he is more of a Dale Steyn than a Morne Morkel.

"I'm not the tallest but have a couple of things to use to my advantage," he said. "I'm trying to get my strength up and the conditioning guys have been working really well having trained with them the other night.

"I'm really excited to be here."

Non-league News

Players required

WINCHESTER City want to hear from keen, young players interested in joining their under-16 set-up for next season.

The club are holding trials next Thursday (April 16, 9am-12 noon) at the Denplan City Ground.

City's under-16s will play in the City of Southampton Youth League and be coached and run by Ryan Andress.

To book a place on the trials, ring Ryan on 07891 245839 or email him at ryanandress@hotmail.co.uk.

Family affair

IT'S not often you get two generations of one family playing in the same football team.

But non-League legend Taffy Richardson, below, bucked the trend when he featured alongside his 16-year-old son George for Verwood Town last Saturday.

The father and son duo played all 90 minutes at Potterne Park but could not prevent a 3-0 loss to Sydenhams Premier Division leaders Petersfield.

Young George had been earmarked to play in his father's testimonial last summer but was not permitted to feature as he was only 15 at the time.

Secretary search

SYDENHAMS One promotion hopefuls Tadley Calleva are seeking a new secretary for next season.

Anyone interested in filling the post should contact the current secretary Steve Blackburn at tadleycallevafc@sky.com.

Salisbury return to the Ray Mac

SALISBURY Football Club have returned to their Raymond McEnhill Stadium, pictured, home.

The club – born from the ashes of the old Salisbury City FC – have signed a lease and will occupy the stadium with immediate effect.

A statement released on the club website said: "We would again like to thank all the people who have helped us to return to the stadium, first and foremost all the supporters who signed the petition and campaigned so vigorously on our behalf.

"In addition, led by John Glen, many figures of all political colours at Salisbury City and Wiltshire County councils have backed us and we are deeply indebted. We are also grateful for the support of the Wiltshire FA and Sport England.

"We thank too the trustees in charge of the Ray Mac for consenting to the return and for their agreement to work with us as we look for a new longer-term home for the club."

"We will now be working hard on getting the new club ready for whatever league the Football Association allocate to us for season 2015/16. Our proposal for a return to the National League System has been lodged with the FA and we expect to meet with them in the next fortnight ahead of their decision in May.

"Our plan to raise revenue now to finance the new club – with rent, rates and other costs being incurred over the summer – and recruit players will take on new impetus with our 'Backin' Business' campaign'."

Salisbury are planning an inaugural match at the Ray Mac later this month or in early May against opponents still to be finalised and have various fund-raising ideas in the pipeline.

Meanwhile commercial manager Mandy Woolford (mandy@salisburyfc.co.uk) has been working hard to put together a package of sponsorship opportunities.

Season ticket prices will be announced from May once the club have been allocated a league.

NO HONEYMOON FOR HOLLICK

UNLIKE some caretaker managers, Steve Hollick has not had the luxury of a 'honeymoon' period at AFC Totton.

Wendy Gee
wendy.gee@dailyecho.co.uk

No magic wand has been waved results-wise since his predecessor Steve Riley left the building.

But given that Hollick took the reins on the back of eight defeats and a draw from nine games, it comes as no real surprise to chairman Andy Straker that the goalkeeping coach has not performed instant miracles to guide the club out of Southern One South & West freefall.

Giving Hollick, pictured, his full backing following Monday's 2-1 defeat at Fleet Town, Straker said: "In an ideal world we'd have taken four points out of six over Easter, but you can't overturn where we are in just two weeks with a new manager.

"Steve has done a great job. He is working really hard, training is spot on and the players understand where we're trying to go.

"What we need now is to build the players' confidence. We've got to get behind them and support them for the three games we've got left."

Faced with a Fleet side who needed victory to make certain of South & West survival, Totton came back from behind through Craig Feeney, only for a Stags old boy – Town player/boss Craig Davis – to sink them with a spot kick at the death.

Straker acknowledged: "We weren't at our best today.

"Fleet were playing off the back of a good win (over Wimborne) on Saturday and knew another win today would make sure they were free of relegation.

"We started the second half brightly, but we seemed to take a step back again. We might have got a draw, but it was probably a fair result because Fleet hit the bar twice. Saying that, I don't think we'd have got the penalty that was awarded to them at the end."

Two days earlier, Hollick had picked up his first point as manager with a 1-1 home draw against North Leigh.

But, while satisfied with the result, he had hoped for a more entertaining Easter spectacle.

Totton's afternoon got off to a promising start when Nathan Hurst toe-poked home from two yards after good work from Feeney.

But come half-time that lead had evaporated with Zak Westlake bundling in the equaliser.

Admitting it wasn't the kind of advert he had hoped for in his quest to land the manager's job on a permanent basis, Hollick said: "It was nice to buck the trend of (eight straight) defeats, but there wasn't a massive amount of football played by either side.

"We'd have taken a draw beforehand, but it's just a bit of a shame the performance didn't match the result.

"It was quite a bruising contest, very stop-start with lots of niggly fouls. Because of that we didn't play to our full potential.

"We worked very hard, defended well and put a decent shift in, but we couldn't produce the slick football we'd played the week before (in an unlucky 1-0 defeat at Yate).

"We played so well away to Yate and got a lot of plaudits for it and it would have been nice to have got the same at home. I wanted our home fans to be able to see it as well. We were really well organised, but offensively it wasn't to be."

PENALTY KING CRAIG

FLASHBACK: Craig Davis scores from the spot for AFC Totton against Fleet Town during the 2008/09 FA Cup tie.

WHEN Craig Davis stepped up to take a stoppage-time penalty against AFC Totton on Monday, long-serving Stags fans must have feared the worst.

After all, the 33-year-old has previous form when it comes to finding the net from 12 yards.

Back in the 2008/09 season when Davis wore Totton blue, he wreaked headline-making havoc from the spot in the FA Cup – ironically against Fleet Town, the club he now player-manages.

The Stags' 5-2 third qualifying round scoreline that day was nothing out of the ordinary ... until you perused the list of goalscorers.

Nathaniel Sherborne and Mark Osman bagged one apiece, but it was Davis who hogged the limelight with a rare hat-trick of penalties in the ninth, 58th and 65th minutes.

Not only was it the talk of Totton, but it propelled him to national prominence as the FA's player-of-the-round.

On all three occasions he stepped up to the spot on October 11, 2008, Davis unerringly found the bottom right-hand corner at the Stags' old Testwood Park home.

It's a formula that is still serving him well more than six years later, this time in the colours of Fleet Town.

With Monday's Southern One South & West showdown against Totton poised 1-1 going into stoppage time, Town's Ben 'Chalky' White was adjudged to have been fouled by Rob Flooks.

Despite heated Stags protests, which saw Stuart Mott booked, Davis kept his cool and successfully went bottom right again, securing a priceless win that erased all fear of relegation for his north Hampshire charges.

He recalled: "When I scored that hat-trick of penalties for Totton one went a bit higher but all three were more or less bottom corner. The goalkeeper that day was Dave Smalley who was still at Fleet when I first joined and I gave him all sorts of abuse about that!

"I had another penalty against Totton when we played at their place earlier this season and I double-bluffed them that day and went the other way and scored.

"There was quite a bit of pressure with the one on Monday because, if it went in, it meant we were safe from relegation.

"I am not going to lie, it was a big moment and a lot of things went through my head – good and bad times at Totton, them knowing my penalty style, what was at stake etc – but I managed to put it away.

"You couldn't have scripted it better. The whistle literally blew seconds later and we were safe after hearing of Bishops Cleeve's hammering at the hands of Merthyr!"

Fleet had been gifted an early lead at Calthorpe Park when Totton 'keeper Steve Mowthorpe's attempted clearance hit striker Pat Cox who duly pounced on the loose ball to find the empty net from ten yards.

Craig Feeney equalised with a deflected shot in the 53rd minute, but Fleet hit back strongly with both Dan Rousell and ex-Bashley and Romsey man Chris Hall hitting the bar before Davis won it from the spot.

"It was a bit blood and thunder first half. We had fire in our bellies, but we also had fire in our brains when we should have had some ice!" said Davis.

"But in the last half-hour we settled down and we were excellent. We could have had four or five."

Davis: Celebrations were not disrespectful to Totton

CRAIG Davis makes no excuses for the exuberant celebrations that followed his dramatic, late winner against his old club AFC Totton on Easter Monday.

He and his fired-up Fleet Town players couldn't contain their joy as his stoppage-time penalty decider ensured they would live to fight another season in the Southern One South & West.

And Davis – who famously scored a hat-trick of penalties for Totton against Fleet in the 2008/09 FA Cup – reckons that if people knew the financial constraints the north Hampshire outfit are working under, they would understand just why it was such a big deal for Town to maintain their Step 4 status.

Davis, now in his fourth season as Fleet player/manager, said: "The show of emotion of our lads celebrating like that was superb.

"I heard a few of their (Totton's) players and staff saying it was disrespectful. Well that is nonsense. With what our players have gone through and put in, they deserve the celebration.

"For our resources and the issues we have had to contend with after Christmas, this is a massive achievement and the way they dealt with the pressure this weekend is up there with any achievement up and down the country in my opinion."

Fleet are essentially a 'south coast' side with the bulk of their players – including Chandler's Ford-based Davis – travelling up from the Southampton area.

But Davis reckons that because the club itself is out on a limb geographically, they tend to get overlooked with people instead giving their sympathy vote to rock-bottom Bashley.

"We're a bit out of sight, out of mind up here," he said.

"People look on it as 'poor old Bashley' but at least they pay expenses!

"Our lads are having to make their own way to games up and down the M4. Our closest 'local' derby is 45 miles away and our players are travelling everywhere off their own bat. Essentially they're paying to play football.

"It's not the club's fault. They can only pay what they can afford, but it doesn't give us a lot of leeway and that's why I'm really proud of us for staying up.

"With our lack of funds it would be a struggle even in the Wessex League, but we work hard, we train professionally and when we travel up and down the country we get a lot of pats on the back for the way we play our football."

Key trio unlock door to victory

THE 2-1 Totton defeat capped a glorious Easter for Fleet, coming just 48 hours after Wimborne Town had been sent packing 4-2.

And it was no surprise to Davis that those crucial back-to-back victories arrived when he finally had three key players back in the fold.

Dan Rousell had been absent since Christmas due to work commitments, skipper and talisman Ben 'Chalky' White – formerly of Eastleigh youth and Romsey Town – was by his unwell girlfriend's side in hospital and top scorer Simba Mlambo, once of Alton Town, sat out six weeks with a broken thumb.

"We stumbled on without them but now we've managed to get them back and we've won two out of two," said Davis.

"Our lads have showed heart and courage in abundance and I just wish I could bring in a bit more experience to help them out.

"We've managed to get Pat Cox, who's an experienced lad with character, but I'd like two or three more like that to add to the youngsters who are developing."

Davis himself has plenty of expertise to pass on from his time with Bashley, Salisbury City, Totton and Gosport Borough but, in ideal world, he would be managing rather than playing at the age of 33.

Asked if he intended donning his boots again next season, he said: "If I had the players to allow me not play myself, I wouldn't, because I really enjoy the management side.

"But I'm still playing an important part on the pitch and I've got brilliant staff around me at Fleet to help out.

"I've got ambitions to go a lot higher, but at the moment it's a massive success to do what we're doing and managing Fleet is a huge learning curve for me – I even wash the kit myself!

"I spoke to (ex-Bashley boss) Barry Blankley the other day and he said: 'Davo, you'll never have a harder job," and it's true. By rights, we shouldn't be in this league.

"If I had a budget to do something with, I think we'd do very, very well. But much as I get angry sometimes, I love Fleet and I love the people up there and I respect the fact they are working within their means. The chairman is only doing what's right for the club."

COUGARS SET PACE

SEVERAL have tried, but no one has managed to 'out-Pace' the Cougars in the Tyro under-11 Division One West this season.

Heading into tomorrow's final game against Southbrook Rangers at the Oasis Academy in Green Lane (Sunday, 2pm), Pace Cougars are already celebrating the title.

Last Sunday's 4-2 win over namesakes Romsey Cougars left them with a perfect record of 17 wins from 17 games, keeping them six points clear of closest rivals Oakwood Lions.

Under the expert guidance of manager Simon Lightfoot and coach Dan Orman, sharpshooting Pace boast a phenomenal goal difference of +136 with 141 scored and just five conceded.

For Lightfoot and Orman it is their third league title success in a row.

They started the team with six and seven-year-olds at Pace, playing competitive games in the Eastleigh & District Mini Soccer League and winning the under-9 White League.

Success in the under-10 White League followed, making them the first side to win two consecutive league titles.

The boys also won the Jim Pearson Challenge Cup that season to complete a league and cup double – something that can't be repeated due to FA rules on the age of competitive football.

On joining the Southampton & District Tyro League, the management team had to increase and strengthen the squad to cope with the step up from seven-a-side to nine-a-side football.

It also meant the boys getting to grips with the offside law, having official referees and playing for an hour.

Five new players were recruited and Lightfoot and Orman spent many a cold, wet night training the team – with support of the parents – to get them where they are now.

Relief for keeper

WIMBORNE Town goalkeeper Jason Harvell revealed his relief at being given the medical all-clear to play over Easter.

The 28-year-old stopper limped off towards the end of the Magpies' home defeat to Stratford Town on March 28 amid concerns he had damaged medial knee ligaments.

He was replaced by Ben Field for the visit of Cinderford Town the following midweek and feared a lengthy spell on the sidelines.

But the Cuthbury favourite, who endured a painstaking recovery from knee surgery in 2012, was pleasantly surprised by the positive prognosis that enabled him to make a swift return for the Easter programme against Fleet and Taunton Town.

Reliving the moment he thought his season might have ended prematurely, Harvell said: "From the initial restriction in movement and the pain I felt, I thought I might have done some medial ligament damage but, fortunately, that was not the case.

"At the time, I was quite upset to be honest. I have been fortunate enough to play a big part this season and, having had knee operation in the past, I know how long it can take to come back from this type of injury.

"I am getting on a bit now and just want to play as many games as possible!"

The Magpies produced a mixed bag of Southern One South & West results over Easter.

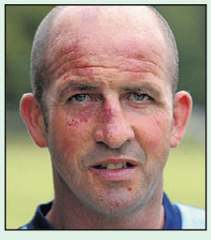
Last Saturday they lost 4-2 away to Craig Davis's Fleet Town who were fighting for their lives at the lower end of the table.

That was followed by an Easter Monday visit from promotion-chasing Taunton which ended in a 1-1 Cuthbury draw.

Luke Stone set up Sam Griffin to bury the Mapgies' opener and Graham Mercieca levelled for the Peacocks with a 30-yard free-kick.

Harvell looked to have Mercieca's strike covered, but it took a heavy defelection off the Wimborne wall and wrong-footed the goalkeeper before bobbling inside the opposite post.

Adie deserves a go



NEW chairperson Fiona Legg says Adie Arnold deserves the chance to show what he can do as manager of Christchurch next season.

Former Verwood boss Arnold has endured a tough time at the Priory helm this term and, going into the last three games of the Sydenhams Premier season, there was no guarantee that the 19th-placed Dorset club would avoid being sucked into the bottom two.

But, despite recent speculation over Arnold's future, Legg has made it abundantly clear that she sees him as the right man for the job.

"Adie has my full support and the full support of many people at the club," she said.

"He deserves a good chance with the right backing and that is what he will get.

"Everyone has opinions, that is human nature, but we have to get everyone together, work as a team and support the players and management.

"That is the aim at the moment.

"Who knows what next week is going to bring?

"We don't know if Adie is going to turn round and say 'I'm done', but personally I would like to work with him next season.

"We are a committee-run club and I can only speak for myself, but I will work closely with Adie to make sure everything is in place. The players will also be fully supported.

"There is a lot we can improve, but the focus has to be on the football, the players and the management at this stage."

Following two priceless home victories over Andover Town and Bemerton Heath Harlequins, Christchurch's cushion over the drop zone was trimmed to three points on Easter Monday.

Although Priory kept their unbeaten run going with a 1-1 draw at Bournemouth Poppies, Totton & Eling narrowed the gap by beating Fawley 3-2.

It was an ex-Hurn Bridge youngster Connor Doe who plunged Christchurch into arrears at Victoria Park. But Priory hit back courtesy of a Mark Smith penalty in first-half stoppage time.

Horse Racing

WINNER: Many Clouds, ridden by Leighton Aspell clears the final fence to win The Crabbie's Grand National Steeple Chase.

Many Clouds won the Crabbie's Grand National at Aintree for trainer Oliver Sherwood and last year's winning jockey Leighton Aspell.

Successful aboard Pineau De Re 12 months ago, Aspell was never too far off the pace and Many Clouds, winner of the Hennessy Gold Cup at Newbury earlier in the season and sixth in the Cheltenham Gold Cup, jumped with aplomb throughout.

For a long way it appeared Shutthefrontdoor could provide Tony McCoy with a fairytale second National triumph before his retirement, but he eventually weakened into fifth place.

Many Clouds tired from the elbow, but had enough in the tank to hold off Saint Are, with Monbeg Dude third and Alvarado fourth.

Aspell said: "It was wonderful and we will certainly celebrate tonight. I asked some big questions, but he dug deep.

"We really refreshed and recharged his battery, and I tried to conserve energy. He is all heart - all season he has had hard races.

"Win lose or draw, that's the best ride I have had in the National. I just hoped his battery life lasted out and it did. ''

The win was a third in the National for owner Trevor Hemmings after Hedgehunter (2005) and Ballabriggs (2011).

Sherwood said: "I can't believe it, it was some spin. All I wanted was the horse to come back in one piece.

"He was foot-perfect and didn't make a mistake. I thought it was a year too soon, but he was fit and healthy and it was Trevor's decision - he must get all the credit.

"The horse has been unbelievable all season, he has blossomed all year - he just got out of bed the wrong way in the Gold Cup.

"I didn't show him any National fences on purpose, I thought he had just gone over the top before the Gold Cup.'' Hemmings said: "Seriously, it was incredible. You come to the National and you dream that you win it.

"When a third comes along, that is something special. It is a wonderful, wonderful feeling.

"For years and years this race has captured my heart. What a wonderful feeling, you can't express it.

"Thank you Oliver Sherwood, thank you Leighton and all the staff, and, of course, Aintree.''

Sherwood added: "I didn't see my horse come back in, so I was a bit worried, but I gather he was just a bit wobbly and he's OK.

"Jumping the last I couldn't watch. I watched the race on my own and the poor people beside me - I lost it completely!

"It was some spin from Leighton - to win it two years on the bounce is just unreal.

"I still don't know what happened in the Gold Cup. He definitely didn't run his race, nothing against the winner (Coneygree).

"I've done nothing with this horse since Cheltenham. He hasn't seen a National fence. I didn't think it was the right thing to do. He's done two quiet bits of work and that's all I've done with him.

"It gave me a bit more confidence this week when (Silviniaco) Conti ran so well and Holywell didn't run badly, so the Gold Cup form was working out.

"Luckily this year there's an extra week from Cheltenham to Aintree, which has made a huge difference.

"I'm going to really enjoy this one – I'm in cloud cuckoo land!"

MICK CHANNON

HILL TO PEAK AT RASEN

SAINTS legend Mick Channon eases Warden Hill back into the fray with what should be a confidence-booster in the Brown & Co Novices' Chase at Market Rasen.

The three-mile-one-furlong contest represents a steep drop in class for the seven-year-old after coming out best of the rest behind none other than Gold Cup hero Coneygree in Grade One company at Kempton on Boxing Day.

Drying ground would be ideal and it will be interesting to see where he goes from here.

Master Of The Hall is back on a competitive mark over fences and can hopefully make his presence felt in the Racing UK Profits Returned To Racing Handicap Chase.

A very smart horse in his younger days with Nicky Henderson, he has done really well for Micky Hammond and has a definite affinity with this Lincolnshire venue, having won three times at Market Rasen and having been placed on his other three visits.

Adding further hope is the fact Hammond's North Yorkshire string is in good heart.

Kayfton Pete is another who was won and run good races here and is the pick to do so again in the Join The Racing UK Club Handicap Chase.

The nine-year-old is a few pounds lower over fences than he is over the smaller obstacles when second at Southwell late last month, giving lumps of weight to winner Moonlight Maggie.

There is an argument he might have needed that a bit, too, on his first run since November.

Red Devil Lads has to be followed in the totepool Supports The Sport You Love Handicap Chase at Ffos Las.

The six-year-old is making up into a progressive young handicap chaser when he gets his favoured conditions and, to that end, hopefully it will not dry up too much in Wales.

Winner of three of his last four starts, the Rebecca Curtis-trained gelding was a very easy scorer at this track in March, defying a 12lb rise in some style.

He has another hike in the ratings to overcome but it will take a brave man to bet that he will not do so.

A terrific card at Leopardstown sees a number of Classic trials, with John F Kennedy the star attraction in the three-runner Ballysax Stakes.

The ten-furlong event is a serious pointer for Epsom and beyond and there is little doubt Aidan O'Brien's Galileo colt looked a serious prospect when winning two of his three starts as a juvenile.
